ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mayor A. J. Cervantes, accused in a Life magazine article of having ties with the city's underworld, promised Sunday night he will fight the magazine's "flagrant irresponsibility in the public area before the people."

"Legal remedies have already been discussed and will be discussed further," said Cervantes. Life alleged he has "business and personal ties with gangsters that operate in his city."

"I know that the people of St. Louis who elected me to lead their city will not put up with this vicious, unfair attack," Cervantes said. "I am confident they will stand with me in this fight."

Cervantes said he was "amazed, outraged and angered" by the article in this week's edition of Life.

"It represents the lowest kind of tactics that a magazine or a reporter can be guilty of," he charged.

Denny Walsh, a former reporter for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and a Pulitzer Prize winner, wrote the article.

Life's year-long investigation shows that Mayor Cervantes himself has business and personal ties with the gangsters that operate in his city," the article said.

Named as Cervantes' links with the underworld were Morris Shenker, head of the city's Commission on Crime and Law Enforcement, and Anthony F. "Tony" Sansone, his campaign manager.

The article called Shenker, chief counsel for imprisoned Teamsters leader James R. Hoffa, "the foremost lawyer for the mob in the U.S."

Sansone, the article said, serves as "the mayor's liaison with the two mobs that run the St. Louis underworld."

"I have never in my life engaged or associated as a partner with anyone in an unlawful business," Shenker said Sunday. "I have not defended one of those so called 'big boys' in 10 years, and I have never been in their counsel, nor would I permit them to tell me anything that did not relate to their particular case."

Cervantes called the Crime Commission which Shenker heads "just an advisory body," adding, "It has no power to help or hurt organized crime. Only the St. Louis metropolitan Police Department enforces the law of St. Louis."

"The magazine's statement that organized crime flourishes in St. Louis is a ruthless, unfair and untrue slap at our community and our police department," he said.

"The story is a series of non-truths, half-truths, innuendoes and careful omissions — irresponsible and dirty journalism at its worst."

Asked about the Cervantes reply to the article, a spokesman for Life said: "We'll let the magazine story speak for itself."

Students March To Support Levy

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 300 students carrying placards and waving American flags marched a seven-mile route to suburban Oak Hills High School Sunday, but they weren't protesting anything.

The students organized the march to publicize a school tax levy which goes up for its third vote June 9. The levy was defeated twice previously.

Officials say the Oak Hills School District will close six weeks next year if they don't get additional operating funds.

See U. S. Aid to Viets in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications are continuing to pile up that U.S. aid support, and perhaps more, will be provided for South Vietnamese forces remaining in Cambodia after American forces pull out sometime next month.

Although President Nixon seemed to say earlier this month there would be no such help, Secretary of State William P. Rogers indicated Sunday U.S. aid would be provided for South Vietnamese operations continuing after the American soldiers withdraw.

Another administration official, Herbert Klein, the President's communications director, said Sunday, "I couldn't really rule in or out" the likelihood of American air and logistic support for troops Saigon keeps in Cambodia following the June 30-mandated U.S. withdrawal.

Klein was interviewed on the

Heavy Fighting Reported With Enemy in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers were reported engaged in heavy fighting today along Highway 7 east of the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Memot, about 10 miles inside the border.

For a while, enemy gunners drove back American helicopters trying to lift out wounded paratroopers, field reports said, but finally they were evacuated.

Reports were sketchy, but one officer said the paratroopers suffered light to moderate casualties in the fight that began Sunday and gradually built up today.

There was no immediate count of enemy losses. The fighting was in the Fishhook region north of Saigon, field reports said.

The reports said the fighting began tapering off at nightfall.

The size of the North Vietnamese force was not immediately known.

Memot lies 20 miles to the east of the large rubber plantation of Chup, seized late Saturday by a South Vietnamese task force who took over from the French staff.

In the Vietnamese fighting, U.S. B52 bombers attacked a new North Vietnamese buildup in the northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

About 60 of the big Stratofortresses dropped nearly 2,000 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese base camps, bunkers and staging areas along the Demilitarized Zone and more than 11 miles to the south below Da Nang.

South Vietnamese troops on a sweep just south of the DMZ caught up with a North Vietnamese force in one area where the B52s hit.

Backed by artillery and fighter-bomber strikes, the South Vietnamese infantrymen reported 45 North Vietnamese soldiers killed and 17 weapons captured. They said four government troops were killed and 16 wounded.

Informed sources said North Vietnamese troops were moving across the DMZ and through Laos to take up positions in the rolling hills.

While the size of the buildup was uncertain, sources said it appeared similar to past troop concentrations that have been dealt with mainly by air attacks because allied forces are spread so thinly in the northernmost parts of South Vietnam.

"I don't see the North Vietnamese doing anything different from what they've done before," said one source. "They come in from across the DMZ and Laos from time to time. The idea is when there are enough of them in there to make a good target, we hit them."

Three American soldiers were killed and 31 wounded in rocket and mortar attacks Sunday on targets that included the headquarters of the U.S. 5th Marine Regiment southwest of Da Nang, an artillery base of the 101st Airborne Division.

To a government contention that this was not a theatrical production, the court said that theatrical productions need not necessarily be performed in buildings or on a stage, nor need they be performed by professional actors nor be elaborately produced.

"It may be that the performances were crude and amateurish and perhaps unappealing, but such can be said about many theatrical performances," said the court's opinion written by justice Hugo L. Black.

chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk made the time right for a strike into Cambodia.

But Nixon's public statement was supported over the weekend by a highly placed source among U.S. uniformed military leaders.

This source said the sudden attack April 30 resulted directly from an urgent call by Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. military commander in Vietnam.

Abrams based his appeal, the source explained, on the need to protect his men while still trying to meet Nixon's previously announced schedule of withdrawing 150,000 U.S. troops from South Vietnam over the next year.

The only way this could be done, the general was said to have stated, was by first knocking out the enemy sanctuaries in Cambodia.

Abrams' plea, sent shortly after Nixon's April 20 speech announcing the withdrawal, was followed by an emergency meeting of the President's top military, defense, diplomatic and national security advisers, the source said.

He added that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and Secretary Rogers gave their approval reluctantly and after raising many questions.

Since Nixon's news conference there have been statements by administration officials and leaders of the Saigon government that qualified his withdrawal assertion regarding the South Vietnamese.

Saigon officials said last week they intend to keep fighting in Cambodia as long as the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are a threat there.

Lebanese Do Battle With an Israeli Unit

BEIRUT (AP) — An Israeli armored force crossed the south Lebanese border today, a government spokesman announced here, and battled for nearly four hours with the Lebanese army at the village of Yaroun, a mile inside Lebanon. The Israeli force, which the spokesman said was backed by air and artillery support, then withdrew.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said only that an Israeli army patrol came under gunfire from Lebanon while operating in the region of the Lebanese border and returned the fire.

The spokesman said there were no Israeli casualties.

Israeli patrols have stepped up patrols in the area since Friday's guerrilla ambushing of an Israeli school bus in which 12 persons died.

The Lebanese communique reported today's attack began at 12:45 p.m. and termed it a "new aggression against Lebanon."

Radio programs were interrupted to broadcast news of the Israeli assault.

It is the second ground attack on southern Lebanon within two weeks. Israeli tanks stabbed into the southeastern corner of Lebanon May 12 in a bid to smash a network of guerrilla bases in the area. They remained 36 hours before pulling back over the border.

Today's reprisal has been widely predicted following the bus ambush.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman said he had no immediate official statement to make on Lebanon's announcement that its territory was attacked by an Israeli armored force.

Israeli newspapers are demanding that the army carve out a "security belt" in southern Lebanon and keep Arab guerrillas away from Israeli settlements.

The idea of a security belt has been mentioned by military men here since the Lebanon-Israeli border started heating up more than a year ago.

Lebanese villagers are reported fleeing this area in fear of Israeli reprisals and the newspaper Maariv said that if the Arab civilians abandoned the area entirely the army would be able to fight the guerrillas freely and keep them away from Israeli settlements.

Sets Limits On Powers Over Funds

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said today the governor of Missouri can neither veto nor reduce an appropriation for public schools.

But the governor can "control by allotment or other means and thereby reduce the expenditure of funds below their appropriations only when the actual revenues are less than the revenue estimates upon which the appropriations are based."

The legal opinion was supplied at the request of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who has expressed fear the legislature will appropriate more money than the state expects to collect.

Danforth said he was not in today's opinion answering the governor's question about whether a fourth allotment can be made this month in order to give the schools the $234 million in state aid they were promised for this fiscal year. It would amount to about $8 million.

Danforth said that question will be answered later in a separate opinion.

The opinion today did say the governor could control appropriations when actual revenues are less than the revenues estimated.

It went further to say that estimated revenues would be the total in the appropriation bills as passed by the legislature.

At one point in the 26-page opinion, Danforth said:

"... assuming that the legislature is acting in compliance with the constitutional provisions, we would then conclude that the total amount of appropriations as passed by the legislature, unless specifically stated in an appropriation act, represents the estimated revenue."

The opinion, written by Gene E. Voigts, first assistant attorney general and approved by Danforth, considered at length the debates before the 1943 constitutional convention on the

More Questions Raised Regarding Area Census

By PETER F. DANIELS
City Editor

Attempts to obtain preliminary Sedalia census figures that show some consistency bogged down Monday in what appeared to be a triangular route used by the Bureau of the Census in transmitting information from regional and district offices to the central office in Washington, D.C.

The district census office in St. Paul, Minn., told The Democrat Monday that it received only population figures for the counties in the seven states it covers. The St. Paul office said it did not receive figures for individual communities.

Those figures, it said, went directly to Washington. Population figures for each community were tabulated at regional offices. In Sedalia's case, this was in Chillicothe. That office has closed its doors, its job apparently complete.

What makes the entire situation confusing, according to some sources, is that there is no central distribution point for the preliminary figures.

The office of Rep. William J. Randall, Fourth District Democrat, showed Pettis County with a population of 55,550 — nine short of what the Chillicothe office reported to St. Paul.

Randall was the first source for individual population figures in Pettis County. According to Randall's report, every incorporated community in the county showed population gains except Sedalia and Hughesville.

William Hall, Sedalia industrial development director, offered comparative figures. The first figure after each town is that shown by Randall and the second is the 1960 census figure.

Green Ridge, 397 compared to 375; Houstonia, 308 compared to 261; Hughesville, 92 compared to 134; LaMonte, 818, compared to 801; Sedalia, 22,249, compared to 23,864; Smithton, 415 compared to 395.

The biggest discrepancy lies in the Sedalia figure. Randall's information gives Sedalia 1,672 fewer people in 1970 than reported by the Chillicothe census office two weeks ago.

Randall's office could not explain why its report said Sedalia had a population of

Panel Stays With Budget

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee plans to finish its surgery late this week on the unbalanced budget approved by the House.

Committee members came back to work today prepared to stay all week if necessary to complete the job of cutting appropriations back to the revenue expected in the 1970-71 fiscal year.

A report of lagging state collections in May complicated the problem.

The rest of the Senate, meanwhile, concentrated on committee hearings on other bills passed by the House, some of them containing potential controversy.

One came up at a committee hearing Tuesday on a bill to extend full search and seizure power to the Highway Patrol. It slipped through the House for the first time in years but ran into charges the result would be creation of a "state gestapo" — a charge that is expected to be renewed in the Senate.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes recommended the proposal to meet the modern problems of criminal mobility.

He also urged that the legislature set up a special committee to study extension of the merit system to all state agencies.

Information Is Sought On Report

Police were apparently still mystified Monday by a report from three teen-age girls who claim they heard a child's screams and then saw two men carry a small girl from an abandoned house on North Mill Sunday night.

The girls reported the incident at 7:10 p.m. Sunday from the 200 block on Mill. They told police they heard the child's screams coming from an abandoned home and one of the girls went to call police.

After making the call, they said, they saw two men carry a girl, about age three, from the rear of the abandoned house and flee. It was not known where the men went.

Investigating Officer James Montgomery said in his report he found signs that someone had been in the house. He also said the grass in the back yard of the property had been trampled — as if someone had gone across it.

By Monday, no reports had been received of any injury done a child that age. Nor could it be determined from where the teen-age witness had made her call.

According to the City Directory, the only residence occupied on the street is that of Charles Jones, 209 North Mill, from where the call supposedly originated. An employee of the City Sanitation Department, Jones could not be reached

Tragedy Should Not Change Discipline

Dear Ann Landers:—I can't stop thinking about that little boy who accidentally shot his sister while playing with the father's gun.

Let us pray the child's parents don't make the same mistake my husband's parents made under similar circumstances. He, too, accidentally killed his sister. His grief-stricken mother and father did everything under the sun to lessen the boy's feelings of guilt. They showered him with attention and gifts and catered to his every whim. The results were disastrous. He grew up to be selfish, inconsiderate, wildly egocentric — completely without concern for others.

The death of a child is a tragedy. But the ruination of a beautiful, bright, promising youngster is equally tragic. The best way to recover from a death in the family is to emerge from the valley of grief as rapidly as possible and do something constructive for the living. Sometimes professional guidance is needed.

I hope the parents of the dead child will stop blaming themselves and treat the surviving youngster just as they would have had the tragedy not occurred. The inclination to be too permissive or excessively over-protective can be disastrous. I know because I am living with it. — Wichita Wife

Dear Reader: Thank you for an excellent letter. And now may I add a word? The surviving child sometimes attempt to take advantage of grieving parents. Parents should be alert to such maneuvering and not permit it.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a ridiculous complaint and I know it but a situation exists in our office that is embarrassing to say the least.

A girl I work with has a fantastic wardrobe. She could go for a month and a half without wearing the same dress twice. I'm sure she has a thing about not repeating outfits and in order to show up in a different outfit every day she has taken to wearing her cocktail dresses. Some of these party numbers are backless and slashed to the navel. When she bends down to put the mail in the bottom slots about 20 guys rush over to "help."

Yesterday she wore a sequined mini that looked like a skating costume. I'm sure it glows at night. The office errand runner (age 17) swallowed his chewing gum when he saw her. Several of us girls think she is cheapening the office. Should somebody say something? — Saving It For My Husband

Dear Saving: The office manager is the one who should "say something" but obviously he likes what he sees, and from your description, he sees plenty. It would do no good to speak to the girl. She knows what she is doing and is enjoying it immensely.

Burlington, MKT Merger Discussed

PARSONS, Kan. (AP)—Talks on a merger of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad and the Burlington Northern Railroad may begin soon, says John W. Barriger, Katy president.

Barriger has sought a merger for the Katy, long plagued by financial troubles, since he became its president five years ago.

"The Burlington has indicated an interest in us," Barriger said at the Katy's centennial dinner Saturday night. "The Katy is not yet wearing an engagement ring, but we're hopeful."

Burlington Northern officials inspected the Katy on a tour in March, and Barriger said the Burlington policy committee recommended that "the Burlington being action to try to get the Katy integrated into its system."

Burlington Northern is the nation's longest railroad with 26,000 miles of track. The 2,700-mile Katy operates in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

George Stafford, native of Valley Falls, Kan., and the new chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, also spoke at the dinner. He said there must be improvements in "railroad freight car shortages, small shipments, movement of household goods and rail passenger operations."

I want my tenure as chairman to be measured by improvements in these services.

Honor Teacher In Journalism With an Award

COLUMBIA — Ronald Clemons, director of publications at Truman High School, Independence, has been named Missouri Journalism Teacher of the Year by the Missouri Inter-Scholastic Press Association. He was honored during the recent Journalism Week at Columbia.

Quill and Scroll is the national honorary society for outstanding high school journalists. Clemons taught journalism at Windsor from 1961-1964.

Screening Of Women Cuts Deaths

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A screening program using a combination of methods helped reduce the rate of death from breast cancer in a group of women studied, a New York research team reported today.

The project involved 62,000 women in the Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York. Half were offered the screening, and the other half received no special attention.

Preliminary findings on the study, which began in 1963, were reported today at the 10th International Cancer Congress by Sam Shapiro, a vice president of the health plan.

Among the women not offered the screening, there have been 52 deaths from breast cancer, he said. Deaths from breast cancer among women offered the screening now total 31, he said, even though the program was hampered because one-third of the women who were offered screening refused it.

Screening included a clinical examination of the breast by a physician and mamography, a technique that uses low-voltage X rays to examine soft tissues in the breast.

The women studied were aged 40 to 64, the high frequency period for breast cancer, now the leading cause of death from cancer among women. Federal census figures show that among every 100,000 women, 20 to 25 die from breast cancer a year.

After an initial screening, the women studied received three additional examinations at annual intervals.

Shapiro said 127 breast cancers were detected as the result of the screening. The value of the combination technique was demonstrated, he said, by a determination that 42 of the cancers would have been missed without mamography and 56 would have been missed without the clinical examination.

Of the 127 cancers detected, 70 per cent had not spread, which greatly improved the women's chances for survival after surgery.

Ninety per cent of the breast cancers in women generally are discovered by the women themselves because a lump appears, and by this time the cancer has spread. Dr. Philip Strax, a coauthor of the report, noted.

The neighborhood store with penny candies and special cuts of meat may be a thing of the the store in 1928, he probably didn't realize he was beginning a tradition of shopping which would be passed through four generations of Sedalians. Many families living around the market have been shopping there since the store opened.

Mrs. Ben Trout, wife of the present manager, says the store people have enjoyed seeing the children grow up and bring in their own children. "It does make us feel old though," she says.

Ben Trout, present manager, has been with the store since 1929. After Welch's death in 1956 the family of Welch asked Trout to continue as manager. Trout is the meat cutter who takes great pride in his work and endears himself to many housewives who are preparing that "special" dinner.

In addition to Trout, the store has two clerks, Mrs. Mary Walker and Mrs. Virginia Smith. Raymond Snow acts as delivery man and Leo Nold assists Trout with the meat cutting.

The store also offers another service the newer chain stores don't have, that of home delivery. Three times daily their green and white truck delivers groceries to persons unable to go to the store.

The store clerks are often called to help with the decision of spending the dime or nickel the children bring in, but they don't seem to mind. A good supply of a wide variety of candies is always available and the children keep coming.

Home Economics Award Given To Kathleen Reed

Plans to honor a home economics senior got under way last week at Smith-Cotton High School with the announcement of a special award to be presented under the auspices of the homemaking department. The award, a gift of sterling silver flatware, was given to Kathleen Reed whose ability, progress and interest in the field of homemaking education have been outstanding, according to Mrs. Mary Maddox, head of home economics at the school.

Provided by the Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America, the award program offers a year-round project in consumer education and is intended to further stimulate student interest in the homemaking arts. Selection of the silver is made by the students early in the year.

Shoes Fit Fashion

Men's fashions in the '70s are sleek, from the knots of their wider-than-ever ties to the tips of their soft, subtle shoes. Wing tips, long the shoe staple of the business community, are out of step with the long, lean look of fashion. Today, men's shoes offer a greater variety in style, which means men can suit their individual tastes to fashion.

Enthusiasm Sustains Arts Council Chairman

By ROY MALONE
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For someone who flunked piano lessons and claims square dancing as her artistic achievement, Nancy Hanks is making some big waves on the cultural scene.

As President Nixon's much-traveled chairman of the National Council on the Arts, she breezed into St. Louis last week to tell some 800 persons in the field of arts and education they better start communicating their needs if they care about the future of the arts in America.

"We're the world's worst communicators. There's a communications lag. A lack of understanding," she said as she mulled over the speech she was about to give to the National Conference of the Associated Councils of the Arts.

Her message was this: The arts are a central element of a good society and they and they belong to everyone. The current explosion of interest in many art forms is straining facilities and pointing up the need for new programs, especially for young people. Money is the answer.

"It is not the fault of members of Congress if we fail. It is our responsibility to communicate our needs — and the cold fact is we have not been doing so well," she told the group.

It was a pep talk. Or maybe a call for help. Since she took the post 7½ months ago the indefatigable Miss Hanks has been a one-woman lecture circuit to arts groups and money sources.

Her popularity must have something to do with the tripling of her mail in recent months. She's been turning down five out of six speaking invitations, including some 20 commencement addresses. She gets up at 5 a.m. and works 12-hour days.

"She's terribly overburdened. She can't keep it up," said an aide.

"Tired. No. It's exciting," said the 41-year-old Miss Hanks.

She's described by colleagues as an intellectual, a perfectionist, a thoroughly professional person who takes her job of building up the arts seriously and has good liaison with the White House. A graduate of Duke University, she did graduate work at the University of Colorado and at Oxford.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles Blaylock and the program will be given by Mrs. Dale Rhoads and Mrs. Ronnie Blaylock.

Tricia Conducts Tour of Her Home

Tricia Nixon, the President's elder daughter, will conduct Harry Reasoner and viewers of the program "60 Minutes" on an informal tour of the Nixon family's living quarters at the White House at 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channels 5, 6, 10, and 13.

Televised tours of the White House were begun by President John F. Kennedy's wife, Jacqueline, in 1962, who took viewers on a popular television special through the historic rooms of the official home of the president, which were being restored.

Tuesday night's program will be the first time the private apartments of the first family will be seen on the television.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss ... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try it for 32 days and see for yourself.

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any weak hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

For more information, write Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., and if they believe the treatment will help you, they will advise how you can take advantage of this 32 day trial at a special introductory price with a money-back guarantee. Just send them the information listed below. Adv.

LLOYD JEWELLEN
Area Farm Management Agent

The two poisonous species found in Missouri can be identified rather easily. The brown recluse spider is generally light brown in color, rather long-legged and has a dark brown "fiddle shaped mark" just behind the head. The body part of the fiddle points toward the head while the neck of the fiddle extends back toward the body of the spider. The black widow spider is shiny black in color and has a red hour-glass marking on the underside of the abdomen.

Spiders feed on insects, so keeping your home as insect free as possible will do much toward reducing the spider problem.

Use of a spray containing one per cent Baygon, two per cent chlorodane, five per cent DDT, five tenths per cent dieldrin or five tenths per cent lindane selectively applied to corners of walls and ceilings, around light fixtures, in storage areas, and the basement will eliminate many spiders.

Some spiders are hard to kill and a household spray containing one of the above insecticides may have to be applied directly onto the spider.

Returns from Pasture

Often times we hear a lot about pastures producing several hundred pounds of beef per acre. Enough that at first it looks like some real dollar returns are easily available. However, our intuition or common sense sometimes plays tricks on us. John Morehead, Area Farm Management Agent, suggests a little pencil pushing shows pasture gains per acre are only part of the story. A story that may be real important financially if we are contemplating seeding down cropland.

Gains per head on livestock using pasture may be more important than gains per acre. High fixed costs of handling cattle to use the pasture is the real issue. For example, a 550 pound yearling at 32 cents per pound is worth or will cost $176.00 per head. If this steer gains 200 pounds and sells for 26 cents per pound six months later in the fall, minus selling margins result in a fixed cost of $6 per cwt. on initial weight or $33 per head fixed cost. The first one hundred pounds of gain is required for the privilege of ownership. Interest on investment, death loss, veterinary and health costs, insecticides, mineral and labor can easily claim another ten to $12 per head. Buying and selling costs, shrinkage, transportation, and commissions may take another $10 per head. One might find that to overcome all of these fixed costs, 175 pounds of gain was required, leaving only 25 pounds of gain left to pay for the gross.

If two steers were grazed per acre, 400 pounds of gain per acre might be realized. In this case, two acres could pay about the going rate per month pasture rental. One steer gaining 250 pounds on this same acre although producing only a little over 60 per cent as much gain per acre may be able to pay three times as much for the pasture. The point here is it takes some finesse to buy, sell and manage cattle, and pastures need to produce high daily gains through the grazing season to realize good returns from pasture.

Cattle Equipment

There is available a 64-page Midwest Plan Service Book on beef equipment. The book contains plans for all costs of beef equipment such as feeders, bunks, gates, etc. There are six pages of corral layouts, chutes, and head holding devices.

Any beef producer may find that adopting one idea from the book is worth the $1 charge. It may be obtained at the University Extension Center.

Fans Give Relief

A window or attic fan may provide welcome relief during the hot summer months ahead. These fans are very effective when outside air is cooler than air inside the house.

Operated during the evening, the window or attic fan exhausts warm air and brings in fresh outside air through doors and windows. To be effective, the fan should be capable of changing the air inside the house at least once each minute.

Fans are rated by the volume of air they will exhaust per minute. The manufacturer furnishes these ratings with each fan. It will be given in cubic feet per minute (CFM). Large fans operate slower than smaller fans to deliver a given amount of air, and usually make less noise.

Hay Maturity

Hay from alfalfa cut at time blooming starts is usually worth about $150 per acre more in terms of milk than a crop cut in full bloom.

At $6 a hundred, the milk produced from feeding initial bloom alfalfa hay from an acre was worth $380. Cows produced only $237 of milk from full bloom alfalfa hay grown on an acre. The comparable figure for half bloom alfalfa hay was $315. Total dry matter, digestible nutrients, and digestible protein was highest for initial bloom hay.

There's another factor to consider. Cows will eat more initial bloom alfalfa hay than they will when forage is cut at half or full bloom.

Cows ate 34.9 pounds per day of alfalfa hay cut at time blooming started, and produced 27.9 pounds of milk per day. Consumption of full bloom hay dropped to 33.6 pounds a day; the amount of milk was 20.8 pounds.

Grasses before boot stage and legumes before budding, 50 to 56 therms, 20 to 22 percent protein.

Grasses in boot stage and legumes in bud to one-tenth bloom, 46 to 49 therms, 16 to 19 percent protein.

Grasses in bloom and legumes in one-tenth to one-half bloom, 41 to 45 therms, 13 to 15 percent protein.

Grasses, heading out and legumes in full bloom, 36 to 40 therms, 9 to 12 percent protein. When making hay or buying hay, we should keep these energy and protein values in mind.

Alfalfa Weevil

The overwintering eggs hatch before those laid in the spring. The very small, yellowish-green larvae with shiny black heads crawl from the stem to the growing terminal where they begin feeding. After several days of feeding, the larvae take on a light green color with a white stripe down the middle of the back. When full grown, the larvae are about three eighths inch long. The larvae feed for three to four weeks gradually working their way from the terminals to newly opened leaves and then onto older foliage. This feeding consists mainly of eating the green from the leaf surface leaving a skeletonized, grayish-white leaflet.

Alfalfa weevil control is costly and time consuming because of the long period of egg hatch, long period of larval feeding on first cutting, and larval and adult feeding on new growth following removal of first cutting.

A spray program may be necessary. The insecticides presently registered and recommended are adversely affected by cool temperatures and all have short to moderately short residual activity.

Farm Roundup

Small Hike in Exports Expected During Decade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department economists say the decade of the '70s holds some promise of boosting U.S. farm exports if prices of commodities are competitive with foreign supplies.

"Some slight recovery (in exports) is occurring this year," says a report by the Economic Research Service, "and the longer-run outlook for moving farm products abroad appears moderately promising, if U.S. prices are competitive in world markets."

The ERS comment, included in a "demand and price situation" report, made no reference to Nixon administration farm policy.

However, a major plank in administration farm thought involves adjusting government price supports so major U.S. crops can compete more easily in world trade.

Economists said in the report that farm exports are expected to increase by about 50 per cent during the next 10 years.

"This increase assumes a growing world demand, continuations of present trends in world farm output, and prices for major U.S. crops close to world levels," the report said.

Officials noted "supply adjustment programs" in the future are likely to continue balancing farm output with prospective markets.

"Despite prospects for some tightening in the supply-demand balance for crops in the years ahead," the report said, "average grower prices may increasingly reflect world market levels."

The economists also said present conditions indicate income prospects for livestock producers during the 1970s "look more generally encouraging."

Therefore, under Missouri conditions, at least one spray is required on the first cutting growth. Also harvest this cutting early. A stubble spray following removal of the first cutting may be needed in some areas or during some seasons to prevent excessive regrowth injury.

Feeding Changes

The pace of change in the beef cattle industry is increasing. The "cheap roughage gains" pointed to a few years ago have been replaced by the all concentrate ration or combination of silage.

When we look at the average of prices for corn and hay since 1943 we find changes in trends that point up the need for the economics in the cattle feeding business. In the five-year period of 1943 to 1947 the price of a ton of hay would buy only 14.2 bushels of corn. By comparison, the five-year period of 1963 to 1967 the price of a ton of hay would buy 21.2 bushels of corn.

When we compare the price in 1957 to graze one-yearling for a season in the Flint Hills of Kansas we find that this pasture rental for the year would buy only 14.77 bushels of corn. In 1967 the pasture rental for the same yearling in the same Flint Hill area would buy 21.59 bushels of corn.

Thus we see the economic advantage of extended roughage feeding disappearing in the cattle feeding business. On our horizon we have seen the appearance of the large western feedlots who operate on a purchase feed basis. Grain can be handled and transported at an acceptable cost. Roughages, because of this bulk, is another matter.

ing" than for farmers growing crops.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists are trying to develop new plants which can thrive in polluted air, which experts claim costs more than $500 million annually in plant losses.

The experiments are being conducted at the department's research center near Beltsville, Md., where different types of plants are being subjected to various types of artificial pollution.

Studies so far show some the growth of some crops may be reduced as much as 50 per cent by air pollution.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices paid dairymen in May for Class I or bottling milk averaged $6.89 per hundredweight in major markets, 24 cents more than a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

Consumers in major cities surveyed paid an average of 57 cents per half gallon for milk at retail stores, the same as in April but three cents more than in May 1969, the department said.

Speaker Says U.S. Asian Role Is Justified

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — The United States is using military power in Vietnam "to defend our interests, protect the weak, and to prohibit enslavement of people who struggle to be free," The Voice of America director said Sunday.

"There are those among us who now berate us for helping the Vietnamese in their efforts to be free, when we assume in our time, the generous role for which we honor Lafayette," said Kenneth R. Giddens of Mobile, Ala., in a commencement speech at Westminster College.

Giddens challenged the graduates to improve their nation if they can.

"Change it, if you will, but only after solemn contemplation, a long and serious study of the facts. Do not act from ignorance. There are those among us who simply want to tear things down and who have no plans nor ideas on how to make it better. Beware of them and do not thoughtlessly aid or strengthen them."

Officer Unaware Of His 'Problem'

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — An hour before Patrolman Joseph Gordon was dismissed from the police force for being "physically unqualified," he captured two alleged holdup men at the scene of a crime.

Gordon was dismissed three days before the end of his two-year probationary period because of a back ailment.

"I want to appeal to the commissioner first and I hope I get my badge back," he said as he turned in his credentials to the desk sergeant.

repetition in 1972 of the widespread charges in the Chicago convention two years ago that delegate selections often were undemocratic and unresponsive to the views of many party members.

Neither major party has ever undertaken such a widespread reform effort, one made more difficult by the complexities of applying basic principles to widely differing procedures in the 50 states.

National Democratic Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien has gone out of his way to assure reformers the new committee is designed to further, not dilute, the reform effort. The first reaction of Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the commission chairman, is to agree.

But uncertainties remain, specifically in two areas:

Possible conflict between the committee and the commission in interpreting how the guidelines would apply in a given state.

The possibility the ad hoc group would recommend against applying some or all of the guidelines to the 1972 convention.

Although O'Brien stressed the committee was created "solely for the purpose of speeding the implementation of the guidelines," an internal party memorandum prepared for him said the panel also would be involved in "interpretation of the McGovern Commission's report."

The inevitable question is: If a party in a state needed an interpretation, would it go to the McGovern Commission or to the ad hoc committee?

O'Brien also said in his week-end letter to McGovern the ad hoc group has "no power to alter or dilute or in any way veto the guidelines."

But party leaders say it does have the authority, as does the national committee, to recommend to the credentials committee which of the guidelines would be included in the 1972 convention call.

McGovern promptly called upon the committee to recommend "the commission guidelines be added intact to the call to the 1972 convention, while recognizing that, by doing so no new legal sanctions would be added."

A third problem could result from the makeup of the ad hoc group, all members of the National Committee which tends to represent the party establishment, in many states antagonistic or indifferent to the reform effort.

It could thus become the center for those elements in the party who feel the McGovern group went too far and wish to slow or reverse the reform drive.

Good Harvests Results From Trained Tomatoes

Tomatoes trained on stakes and pruned require less garden space and produce earlier, larger, and cleaner fruit.

Although many systems of supporting tomatoes have been developed, the most convenient and successful is staking. Use wooden stakes about six feet long, and 1 x 1 or 1 x 2 lumber. Have stakes pointed on one end. Place them four inches to the side of the plant. Drive stakes into the soil about 10 inches or until they are firm.

As the plant grows attach it to stake with soft cord, strips of cloth, or commercial ties. Make ties about every 12 inches to give the plant good support. Tie the plant so cord runs under a leaflet branch. Attach cord to the stake so it will not slip down. Allow at least a half inch of play between tomato stem and stake.

Simple tomato pruning consists of removing side shoots when they are three to four inches long. Do not cut them with a knife. Disease can be spread in this way. Break shoots off by pulling out and down. When removing shoots be careful not to pinch out the growing tip of the plant.

Tomatoes may be pruned to a single stem, or two to three stems may be allowed to develop. Pruning to a single stem will reduce yield somewhat but fruit will be earlier and larger.

If more than three stems are allowed to develop, training and care will become more difficult. The second and third stem are developed from the lowest vigorous shoots on the plant.

The "Missouri method" of pruning, adapted from the basic method, will help increase yield. It allows more foliage to develop. This foliage allows the plant to manufacture more food. Therefore, larger and more fruit is produced. Extra foliage will also help prevent sunburn on lower fruit.

In this method, instead of removing an entire side shoot, break it back so two leaves remain on the stub. Remove any shoots that may later develop from this stub but allow the two leaves to remain.

When growth is vigorous in the early part of the season, will be necessary to prune and tie plants once a week. After three or four clusters of fruit have set, and growth has slowed, pruning once every two weeks may be adequate. Try to tie the stems so fruit clusters will face away from the stake.

When the plant reaches the top of the stake, either pinch out the tip to help increase size of fruit already set, or allow the tip to hang down and still set fruit.

Proper Lawn Care Means Avoiding High Expenses

By VIC CAROTHERS
Area Agronomy Agent
Are you giving your lawn a fair chance this summer? There is much truth to the old saying, "Be good to your lawn — and it will be good to you." And, we should because we have a good-sized investment in our lawns. Many folks say they don't have the money or the time to take good care of their lawn. But this is a poor excuse for neglecting it.

Actually, we can have a good bluegrass lawn on a low budget. We must mow our lawn anyway and proper mowing does not cost an extra penny. A planned, recommended fertilizing program can have a great effect on our weed control program. And, most weeds which still appear can be killed with little expense or effort when treated at the proper time.

Summer Lawn Management
Summer management of bluegrass lawns is very important in maintaining a nice lawn and prolonging its life. That is, if we have a "fair" lawn to start with. Actually we can do much to improve a "fair" or thin stand of bluegrass. And, it is worth taking a little extra care and attention to improve rather than abuse it.

Many homeowners abuse their lawns every summer and in a few years are literally "in tears" over a weed-infested lawn with only a little bluegrass. Such abusive practices include: close mowing all summer long; using a dull mower; sprinkling the lawn on hot evenings; and relying on spring fertilizer applications only. How do the University of Missouri Horticulture Specialists and other lawn-care specialists recommend caring for lawns?

Raise Mowing Height
The one single practice which is responsible for the deterioration of more lawns than any other is mowing a lawn too short. It is a common practice to mow the lawn so short it looks like a carpet or requires less frequent mowing. Mowing a lawn and scalping it in raised spots definitely weakens the root system. And, this in turn results in a thin stand of grass vulnerable to weed invasion, wear, attack by insects and drought injury. The higher the cut, the more the bluegrass roots will spread, forming a dense stand of turf.

Here in late May — with high temperatures here or just around the corner — it is urgent that we begin mowing our bluegrass at a higher cut. Short "cropping" of lawns for the past few weeks of rainy weather has not been harmful to most lawns. But warmer and drier days are ahead.

Lawns cut at less than two inch height through the summer will be weakened, and it is just plain "murder" to mow at one inch heights. The cutting height should be raised to two and one-half inches or on up to three inches, if possible. Many mowers have easy wheel adjustment levers, which respond to a quick touch. These can be purchased for most mowers for about $5 for a set of four which can be put on in a few minutes and left on permanently.

But, even time spent in changing the bolts on each wheel is time well spent because this high cutting height should not be changed before late fall. This high cut helps to keep soil temperatures down several degrees and reduces the number of crabgrass and other germinating weed seeds. And, a stronger, deeper grass root system can reach more soil moisture and plant food.

Keep Blade Sharp
Also, if you did not have the mower blade sharpened this spring, you probably are not making a clean cut, but tearing off the blades. Thus, the grass tops may be severely bruised and turn white, then brown — giving an unsightly appearance. If the lawn has a grayish cast or appears scorched or singed the day after mowing, the mower blade should definitely be sharpened. So keeping the mower blade sharp, can also add life to lawns.

Frequency of mowing is also important in helping to keep a good lawn turf. It is extremely hard on the grass if more than one-third of the total grass blade is removed at a given time. Removal of larger amounts often results in a shock to the plant, causing excessive yellowing or browning of the leaf tips which retards the production of food and results in a depletion of the roots themselves. And, mowing wet grass should be avoided as much as possible. Dry grass cuts more easily, does not ball up and clog the mower, and gives a finer appearing lawn. Timing tests show that mowing dry grass requires less time than mowing wet grass. Mowing a lawn is not merely a simple operation to be regarded as a means of removing excess growth. It is a necessary maintenance practice which has far reaching effects on the appearance and life of bluegrass.

Be Safety Conscious
Safe operation of the lawn mower is another topic in itself. Even adults need to be conscious of the dangers present around a power lawn mower. And, with school out and many older children available to help with home chores, all parents should be certain that extra safety precautions are taken.

Midwives Are Making A Comeback

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Midwives are making a comeback. But this time they are nurses and they deliver babies in hospitals, not homes.

Pretty, 28-year-old Mary Sue Wilson is helping lead the pack. "With so many women having babies, doctors are having trouble seeing them all," she said. "This is the reason for this new specialty."

Miss Wilson is a nurse with a year of post-graduate study specializing in nurse-midwifery. Now she's qualified to work under the supervision of a doctor, but only with patients whose physicians expect them to have normal deliveries.

"We don't work with women who have a history of diabetes, heart ailments, miscarriages or who have had difficult deliveries in the past," she said.

The daughter of a Fort Lauderdale doctor, Miss Wilson works at the University of Florida Medical School hospital and is to wed a doctor June 13. She is one of a handful of nurse-midwives in Florida.

Miss Wilson takes a hand early in pregnancy and sets up regular visits with her patients until they deliver. All 41 births she has attended have been at hospitals.

Generally, Miss Wilson delivers the child with the help of one regular nurse.

"If anything goes wrong, we are instructed to call the doctor immediately," she said. "We don't deliver breech babies and we don't do any Caesarian sections."

How do patients react? "Some patients are happy to get a woman because they feel a woman would have more empathy," she said. "Others are modest and like a woman for that reason."

"But mainly women like to have a nurse-midwife because she can give more attention. A lot of them seem to relate better to women, anyway."

Seeking To Represent U.S. Air Controllers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, after snarling the nation's airports three times in two years, is fighting to become the sole official union of the government's 11,500 controllers.

But the Federal Aviation Administration and a rival union have staked out their opposition in advance of Labor Department hearings on the matter Tuesday.

FAA Administrator John H. Shaffer contends a single nationwide unit would be inappropriate to the FAA's decentralized management.

He also has told the Labor Department he considers PATCO an unlawful organization because of a one-day "sickout" and stick-to-rules action last June and a more recent "sick-out" that began last March 25, peaking five days later and subsiding around mid-April. He did not mention PATCO's "Operation Air Safety" that also caused major delays and tieups in summer 1968.

The National Association of Government Employees, which has negotiated 160 local contracts for controllers, also is opposing PATCO's bid and has accused it of unfair labor practices in the March "sickout."

Another controller group, the Air Traffic Control Association, also is expected to challenge PATCO's legality, although ATCA is a professional organization and is not competing for union recognition.

In addition, PATCO's legality is expected to be challenged by the American Federation of Government Employees, the National Federation of Flight Engineers and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

The FAA's Shaffer also has accused PATCO of knowingly violating conflict-of-interest regulations by soliciting certain corporate memberships.

Shaffer said furthermore that PATCO fails to meet the criteria for exclusive recognition—that of a clear and identifiable community of interest.

The employees in the proposed PATCO unit are employed at 385 widely dispersed facilities. Working conditions and employee skills and training vary greatly, he said.

Shaffer said PATCO's petition is counter to the long tradition of bargaining at the local level within FAA.

At a convention at Las Vegas, Nev., April 19-22, PATCO directors recommended affiliation with the AFL-CIO Maritime Engineers Beneficial Association

This proposal is to be submitted to a membership referendum.

PATCO also elected a new president and eliminated the post of Executive Director, leaving attorney F. Lee Bailey in service as general counsel.

The FAA says it is increasing its controller force and improving working conditions at a steady and rapid pace.

Cambodia-Viet Hatred Apparent

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Army helicopter settled into the rice field north of Neak Luong, Cambodia, and a Cambodian major kissed the pilot on both cheeks.

The next day South Vietnamese Marines linked up with the Cambodian Army outside Neak Luong, and the Cambodian major refused to shake hands with the Vietnamese commander.

As South Vietnamese forces occupy more and more of south-east Cambodia, the centuries-old racial hatred between the Khmers of Cambodia and the Annamites and Tonkinese of Vietnam has become more and more apparent.

The Vietnamese are apparently preparing for a long stay.

"We can go farther into Cambodia," said President Nguyen Van Thieu on May 11. "and there is no deadline for getting out."

The next day Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky said Saigon's forces can stay in Cambodia "many months," even without U.S. logistic support. Ky said he thought South Vietnam could keep 16,000 men in Cambodia.

All of this makes the Cambodians nervous. They hate and fear the Viet Cong because they are Vietnamese, not because they are Communists. They hate and fear the South Vietnamese army for the same reason.

"I am afraid," Prince Norodom Sihanouk told a Western newsmen several years ago, "that the Vietnamese will march to the Mekong from the East and the Thais will march to the Mekong from the West, and there will be no Cambodia left."

The Thais have not yet marched from the West, but North Vietnamese, Viet Cong and South Vietnamese Army forces now control virtually all of Cambodia east of the Mekong.

Only French colonial power kept the Thais and Vietnamese from dividing up Cambodia a century ago. The Vietnamese had pushed south from the Red River Delta for almost 2,000 years, gradually taking from the decaying Khmer Empire most of what is now central and southern Vietnam.

The Vietnamese did not take over the western Mekong Delta until the late 18th and early 19th centuries, and Vietnamese expansionism is still a vivid reality to many Cambodians.

It was this deep racial hostility that led to the massacre of thousands of Vietnamese in Cambodia in March and April.

Despite many commanders' conscientious efforts to avoid inflicting civilian casualties or damaging Cambodian property, considerable damage has been done. The average Vietnamese soldier feels little or no affection either for Cambodian civilians or for the Cambodian army.

"I'm afraid that in the long run, this invasion is going to cause more hostility than ever between the Cambodians and the Vietnamese," said one American.

Cooperation between Cambodian and Vietnamese troops appears superficial. One top South Vietnamese general has several times expressed his contempt for Cambodian soldiers, the Cambodian government and Cambodians in general.

The hostility the Cambodians feel toward the Vietnamese invaders - both North and South Vietnamese is evident in many ways.

Cambodian high school students in Phnom Penh killed a South Vietnamese sailor two weeks ago and beat up two other Vietnamese.

Posters have appeared in Phnom Penh calling on the United States to withdraw the South Vietnamese army.

A Cambodian military spokesman told newsmen: "Cambodians would prefer to die than stay under the rule of the Vietnamese. They have been our enemies for centuries. We will never be dominated by the Vietnamese. That is why the population is rising against them." He indicated that he meant all Vietnamese, those under Saigon's command as well as Hanoi's.

Further Cuts Expected In U.S. Defense Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Defense officials say deeper cuts in total U.S. troop strength will be necessary because of a predicted budget deficit and an expected move by Congress to slash Pentagon spending.

There are some indications the Joint Chiefs of Staff have sought to use the allied attacks into Cambodia as a lever to persuade Congress to increase military appropriations.

However, top civilian Pentagon authorities say the chiefs are deluding themselves—Congress will order reductions, rather than increases, in President Nixon's $71.8 billion Defense budget for the bookkeeping year starting July 1.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has called this budget

"rock bottom, bare bones" but he now knows Congress almost certainly will not agree.

Two events occurred last week which point toward rising money troubles for the Defense Department.

One was the Nixon administration's disclosure that it anticipates a $1.3 billion deficit for the 1971 fiscal year instead of an earlier forecast surplus.

The other was an indication by Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the key House Appropriations Committee, that the administration's Defense budget, submitted in February, will be slashed at least $1 billion.

That budget calls for bringing the armed services roll down to about 1.9 million, a cut of more than 252,000 men, and a reduction of 57,000 civilian workers for a new total of about 1.1 million nonmilitary defense workers.

At their peaks for the Vietnam war period last June, there were about 3.5 million men in the military and nearly 1.3 million civilians.

But in light of recent developments, top Defense officials make it plain an even heavier military manpower reduction, and probably a civilian worker cutback, lie ahead.

Authorities also predict additional base closings and reductions on top of the 678 facilities already affected by Pentagon economy moves in the last nine months.

Officials say further cuts in U.S. troop strength carry with them additional security risks.

They imply the strength reduction probably will fall hardest on the strategic troop reserve maintained in the United States for possible emergencies abroad, rather than any substantial cutbacks in overseas garrisons.

Defense authorities discount the idea budget pressures will accelerate the troop withdrawal from Vietnam.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff already are less than happy about the pace of U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, preferring a slower-paced pullout.

Civilian Defense leaders are aware that budget cutting creates morale problems and sets the armed services to maneuvering against each other for larger shares of the smaller money fund available for men and weapons.

Also, if the strategic arms limitation talks—SALT—should fail to show much progress by the end of the year, the administration will be faced with what Laird has called a hard decision on whether to start new offensive weapons development and procurement.

Therefore, depending on what happens at the Vienna SALT talks, the Nixon administration could find itself in a tough bind—caught between a need to hold spending in check and what it feels is perhaps an equally imperative need to spend more on new weapons to assure U.S. security.

Chamier Says Investigation O.K. With Him

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP)—Richard Chamier, chairman of the Missouri Human Rights Commission, said Sunday he would not mind having a federal investigation of his agency.

Chamier commented on a complaint by Robert White, regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, over the appointment of Clyde Scott as executive secretary of the Human Rights Commission.

In a letter to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, White said two eminently qualified Negroes, William Rice and Harold Whitfield, were passed over for the job. White asked for a federal investigation.

Chamier agreed that Rice and Whitfield, both of Jefferson City, are valued employees of the commission, but the screening committee felt that Scott's age and administrative experience made him a logical choice.

Develop Your Child's Creativity—VII

No Mystery to Science Talent

By Thomas J. and Alice Fleming
Most children with scientific talent are shy, withdrawn introverts, right?

"This is the silliest of the many myths about scientists. On the contrary, most youngsters with scientific talent are cheerful, outgoing sociable personalities. Many of them are top athletes."

The man talking is Dr. Donald A. Edgerton, who has probably seen and studied the minds and personalities of more potential scientists than any man alive.

As head of the Westinghouse Science Talent Search, he has conducted gigantic nationwide hunts which for over 25 years have scoured the country to give an annual $34,250 in scholarships and awards to young would-be wizards who meet the exacting requirements.

What does a youngster need to become a scientist? Nothing but talent and motivation, Dr. Edgerton insists.

You mean anyone with a decent brain can become a scientist?

Absolutely anyone, Dr. Edgerton says. "Most people think science requires some special inborn talent, which can only be inherited. This is nonsense. Some of our greatest scientists have come from utterly unscientific backgrounds. Few of the thousands of youngsters who have passed our science search test had scientist parents."

Scientists Like Others
Another scientist connected with the Talent Search, Dr. Watson Davis, emphatically confirms Dr. Edgerton's view that a young person does not have to be a genius to become a good scientist. "Most young scientists tend to have I.Q.'s in the neighborhood of 125. They are hard workers, however, and are usually in the top five per cent of their high school graduating classes. Aside from this and their unique competence in science, they have usually been very much average American youngsters—gum chewers, churchgoers, car tinkers, Boy Scouts, musicians, debaters and members of varsity athletic teams."

You don't have to be Einstein to be a successful scientist," Dr. Edgerton adds, "any more than an artist has to be Rembrandt to make a good living as a painter."

What kind of child is most apt to develop into a scientist? The exploring child, the boy or girl who is interested in butterflies, frogs, mechanical toys. Usually, in childhood, a youngster's interest in such things is erratic. He jumps from one thing to another every several days. But parents should not think his interest is merely a passing phase. It is perfectly normal for the young inquiring mind to have an active curiosity in many things. Parents should show an interest themselves. If a very young child is fascinated by flowers, instead of angrily ordering him away from mother's favorite petunias, let him dig one up, study the roots, feel it, smell it—satisfy his curiosity.

Not a Mystery
Parents should never look down their noses at any scientific scheme a child may dream up, no matter how wild it sounds. Most important, parents should take science off the mental pedestal it occupies in the minds of too many people. Science is part of our American culture. To learn about science is necessary to increase our enjoyment of living, our knowledge of life. It is natural—there is nothing mysterious about it.

Virginia B. Warren of the National Education Association is another expert who is convinced that parents can play a dramatic role in developing their children's talents. In science, she says, "encourage your child to be a collector. Let him collect whatever interests him—rocks, insects, leaves, stamps, shells. Ride along with the zooming interest in outer space and buy him an inexpensive telescope. Bring the scientific approach to bear on everyday events. When someone makes a broad statement, challenge it with questions like 'How do you know that's true?' Where did you get those statistics?" For Christmas or a birthday give him a subscription to a scientific magazine, an easy to assemble radio earphone set, or any scientific toy.

Programs Available
By the time a child gets to high school, his scientific abilities and interests may have outrun a non-scientist parent's ability to contribute much to his stimulation from a mental point of view. Now is the time to invest some adult ingenuity—and possibly some hard cash—into his talent. There are summer camps and private schools with excellent summer programs in science. The National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C. 20025, has offered summer science programs of various types to secondary school students of high ability. Most of the programs delve deeply into some subject such as biology, mathematics or physics. Others offer students opportunity to engage in scientific research under the direct supervision of a scientist. Many combine both these kinds of experiences. Application blanks should be secured from the directors of colleges and universities in your own state.

Kids Unchanged
The latest winners in the National Science Talent Search testify to the value of these insights into the discovery and encouragement of young scientists. The winner of the $10,000 scholarship was Kirk A. Shinsky, the 17-year-old son of an Allentown, Pennsylvania, pipefitter. Kirk said he first became interested in science when he was eight. "Some of my relatives gave me some elementary science books," he said. "My parents didn't go to college but they encouraged me and my interest increased with time." A perfect example of the "fostering" attitude.

Harry R. Gale, director of science information for Westinghouse, says, "It's amazing how little these kids change. Every year we get the same type of student. They are imbued with the curiosity of scientific inquiry. The names and faces change, the sideburns may get longer and the dresses may get shorter, but they are the same type of student."

Give your child a chance to become one of these scientific winners by making him aware of the fantastically interesting world around him.

Your Attitude and Your Child's Achievement

Your attitude toward achievement strongly influences your child's motivation and performance. These questions will help you to see your attitude more clearly. The scoring guide appears below.

- If your child showed you a painting he had done, how would you react? Pick the closest alternative.
  - a. "Gee, couldn't you do a little better?"
  - b. "Hey Tom, that's the best picture I've ever seen!"
  - c. "Your colors are really exciting. I'm looking forward to seeing the next one."
  - d. "That's o.k., but why don't you play baseball with the rest of the boys?"
- What would you say to your child if he got a "D" in school? Pick the closest alternative.
  - a. "Don't worry son, the teacher doesn't know how smart you are."
  - b. "I got A's in school. Why can't you?"
  - c. "I'm sure you can do better. What can we do to help you?"
  - d. "If your grades don't improve, you'll never see TV again!"
- Your child comes home with a straight A report card. What do you do?
  - a. Ignore it.
  - b. Show your genuine happiness over his success and then celebrate his achievement.
  - c. Tell him he's the smartest person in his class and is thus expected to get A's.
  - d. Reward him.
- How do you get your child to participate in extracurricular activities? Pick the closest alternative.
  - a. Buy him a baseball glove.
  - b. Make him read a book and discuss it with you.
  - c. Find out in what he is interested and encourage him through creating a situation in which he can freely pursue that interest.
  - d. Offer him a reward if he joins a club at school.
  - e. Tell him that extracurricular activities are important if he wants to get into college.
- Do you encourage your child to compete against his peers in ... (Check all that apply)
  - a. sports and games
  - b. grades
  - c. hobbies
  - d. gaining status
  - e. having his opinion accepted by others
- When you were your child's age, did you consider it important to ... (check all that apply)
  - a. get good grades
  - b. pursue outside hobbies and interests
  - c. read for the sake of accumulating useful information
  - d. complete projects
- Did you consider it important to have "more" than your family?
  - yes
  - no
- What kinds of people do you like to be around most now? Check the closest alternative.
  - a. striving, achieving people
  - b. friendly, but passive individuals
  - c. people clearly inferior to yourself
- Solve the following problem—time yourself.
Mr. Abcab has 3 boats which hold 2,000 pounds apiece. Mr. Boobo has 5 trucks which carry 1200 pounds each. Mrs. Crump has 5,000 pounds of rare live frogs which she wishes to send from New York City to San Francisco. The frogs must be delivered in 3 weeks or they will die. The ships usually take 20 days to make the trip. The trucks cost $1,000 each. There is a 30% likelihood that a hurricane will delay the ships by one week. The boats would cost $1,000 each. The rare frogs are worth $10,000. What should Mrs. Crump do?

SCORING GUIDE

Question 1: C is the best answer, from the point of developing your child's achievement drive.

Question 2: C is the best answer because you recognize his potential and show willingness to help him take a step toward using it.

Question 3: B is the best answer, for younger children it may be particularly desirable to underscore your happiness with some sort of celebration.

Question 4: C is the best answer. Your objective should be to encourage his own interests rather than imposing your own values.

Question 5: Competition is inherently neither good nor bad. A, B or C are acceptable.

Question 6: There is no best answer to this question. However, those people with the highest levels of achievement probably feel that success in 2 or 3 of the 4 fields was important.

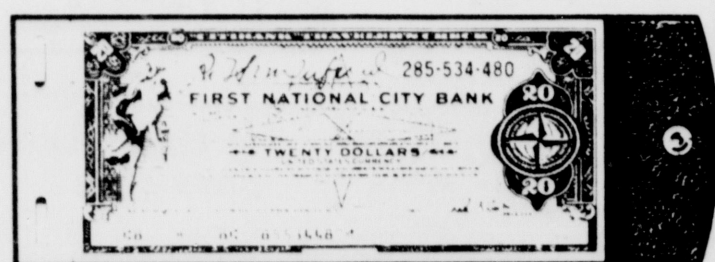

Question 7: "Yes" is the best answer.

Question 8: The success motivated person is most likely to choose A.

Question 9: In this problem there is no "right answer." A highly motivated, achievement-oriented person would most likely arrive at some decision. Our answer: send them by truck at a cost of $5,000; shipping is not worth the risk!

Welk Keeps Bubbling On In Ratings

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While certain industry observers are predicting trouble for television shows that attract older viewers, everything is simply wonderful, wunnerful for Lawrence Welk.

Proof: he recently signed for his 10th season with the same sponsor, J.B. Williams. And that's for a 52-week season, not the usual 32-39 of most series.

Welk's litting hour has been on ABC since July 2, 1955, and it may last forever. This despite the recent trend away from older-appeal shows by advertisers aiming at the 18-49 market. One longtime seer of the television market even predicted that Welk and Ed Sullivan, both with mature audiences, would vanish from the networks after next season.

"We have more to go on than what comes out of Madison Avenue," the bandleader said defiantly. "I feel that any show that gives an hour of pure entertainment stands a good chance of survival."

"I plan to make that man eat his words."

Lawrence Welk is likely to do just that. For 15 years in network television he has been defying the scoffers, the wisecracks and the fun-pokers. His style seems to have remained the same, say, mid-1938, but in reality he has changed.

"We are changing our mode of presentation all the time, yet you can't make the change so severe that you sink with it. That happens with a lot of shows. They start making changes and all of a sudden they have no format; they're neither fish nor fowl."

"Next season I'll try to make improvements, without going too far. I like to pull a little stunt now and then, like on the first show this season when I came on as a hippie. Some of the elderly people thought I had changed my style. I hadn't."

Welk boasted of his "nice, loyal, stable audience." It includes the very young—he notices the youngsters who cheer for him on floats in parades.

"We lose them when they become teen-agers," he admitted. "For that reason Saturday night is the best night on television for my show; it's date night for the youngsters."

Then we get them back when

Housewife Sees War First Hand

DEARBORN HEIGHTS, Mich. (AP) — A Dearborn Heights housewife says she is convinced more than ever that the United States should be in South Vietnam, after touring a combat zone where a Communist sniper fired at her, her son and a friend.

"I guess I was just tired of hearing demonstrators and protesters tell me what the facts were," said Mrs. Raymond Brimmer.

"I had a son over there and I wanted to see for myself," said the trim, blonde housewife, who is in her 40s.

She said she went alone last week to Saigon to visit her son.

They are newlyweds and start staying home. It's the mothers and fathers-and the youngsters—who support our show."

Cost is another factor that contributes to the longevity of the Welk show; it is the least expensive variety hour in nighttime television.

Edward, 19, who is stationed at a naval base at Dong Tam. She said they met a 24-year-old lieutenant, who had served two tours in South Vietnam, and he agreed to take them on a jeep's tour of military installations in combat areas.

"Of course, we didn't ask anybody's permission about any of this and I certainly don't want to get that lieutenant in trouble," she said, about the trip. She declined to give his name.

She said they took a 3½-day tour of American installations, including Dong Tam and Long Binh.

Mrs. Brimmer said she talked to about 20 servicemen about the war, adding: "I can tell you that they all know what they're there for. They know they have to stop communism or we'll have it here next."

"I can't forget any of their faces. I wouldn't take a million dollars for the experience," she said. "When those guys read about the protests in this country, or trying to vote to cut money off for the war, it gets them down worse than anything except getting shut out at mail call."

She said her son, an only child, enlisted in the Navy "because he believed in America."

Nerve Gas For Alaska Draws Mixed Reactions

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Reports that a naval station near this fishing port of 2,600 residents may become the repository of 13,000 tons of nerve gas met with a mixed reaction today.

Sen. Mike Garvel, D-Alaska, described the reported plan as "dangerous and totally unacceptable to the people of Alaska," and Gov. Keith Miller pledged that he would try to block it.

Mayor Pete Resoff said: "It's like getting a Christmas present of a bag of snakes." But he added that it might be a boon to the community's depressed economy.

"We've heard it might mean anywhere from 4 to 14 million dollars with 400 to 600 new families."

The Defense Department announced Sunday that plans to move the nerve gas from Okinawa to the Umatilla Ammunition Depot near Hermiston, Ore., had been canceled by President Nixon and that the Pentagon was studying alternate storage locations. A department spokesman said Kodiak Naval Station was one of several possible sites being considered.

The naval station occupies 30,000 acres seven miles from the town of Kodiak, which was severely damaged by the 1964 Alaskan earthquake.

Formation of an Anchorage chapter of People Against Nerve Gas (PANG) was announced Sunday. A Seattle chapter of the same group which filed a court suit opposing shipment of the gas through the Northwest last week staged a "die-in" in downtown Seattle to symbolize what could happen if the gas escaped during shipment.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said sending the gas to Alaska because of opposition to shipping it through the Northwest "makes Alaskans second-class citizens."

Magnuson said he would continue to press for an amendment to the Military Sales Act which would bar using military funds to ship chemical warfare weapons from Okinawa to any port in the United States. Gravel said he understood Kodiak was being considered a top choice because the munitions could be loaded almost directly from ships into storage areas without overland movement.

The decision not to store the gas in Oregon was greeted enthusiastically by officials of Oregon and Washington.

Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon said the Pentagon decision was proof "that the system does work, that the White House does and must listen, that the Pentagon ultimately is compelled to obey the citizenry."

Try for 'Vote Power'

Of all that has been said in the aftermath of the Kent State University tragedy, one of the most poignant statements was that of an anguished coed.

These four deaths wouldn't have happened, she said, if the government had listened to the students when they gathered by the hundred thousand in Washington last October for the Peace Moratorium. The students tried to work within the system, to express dissent peacefully, but nobody listened to them.

Ever since campus unrest began at Berkeley back in 1964, the older generation has been telling the younger that if it wants to reform society it must work within the system set up by society. And more and more the young have been replying that society resists orderly change, that the system is stacked against reform. Therefore, more violent action is necessary.

The fault is not that of youth. Somewhere along the line, while the children were raising a generation of obedient parents, someone failed to make clear to them the nature of "the system."

The simple fact is that while everyone in this country has the right to state and publish and dramatize his opinions, nobody is obligated to listen to him. In a democracy it is through the ballot box that the people implement change, not through the megaphone.

Oh, yeah? it is asked. What about the 1964 election? Did not the people vote overwhelmingly for Lyndon Johnson because he promised not to widen the war in Vietnam and overwhelmingly against Barry Goldwater because he talked as if he might? And did not Johnson turn around and do exactly what he promised not to do?

What about the 1968 election? The people elected Richard Nixon because he said he had a plan to win the war and because they believed a fresh administration might have a better chance to get the country out of the entanglement. But now we are in Cambodia by Nixon's order and, a year and a half after his election, still have over 400,000 men in Vietnam.

This is democracy?

The reply is that a president's room for unilateral action as commander in chief is also part of the system, an imperfect system. In 1963, Congress backed up that power by giving the president a virtual blank check in Vietnam. In 1970, with the hindsight of six years, some senators wish they could give the President nothing more than 30-day renewable notes.

The reaching of a consensus among the American people for withdrawal from Vietnam (but not a consensus on the speed of the withdrawal) has been a long, painful, costly process and students should not discount the role they played in that process. But the democratic system is not built for speed or sudden turnings.

If demonstrations or rioting by a small minority had intimidated the President into ordering an immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, the damage done to the system might in the long run have outweighed the short-run benefit of ending our part in the war.

No nation can long function when its decision-making begins to take place in the streets.

There are encouraging indications that youth may be getting fed up with violent, noisy dissent and be getting ready to really give the system the old college try, to borrow a phrase from a more innocent time.

Hundreds of college students — clean, neat and polite — have descended on Washington in recent days to buttonhole congressmen and officials — to talk with them, not at them. Thousands of students plan to take time out from school this fall to work for the election of congressional candidates they support.

But these young people should be reminded again that "the system" makes no guarantees to anyone.

Of all the thousands of people who run for elective offices of one kind or another every year in the United States, exactly half of them could say:

"I tried to work within the system, but nobody listened to me. The voters rejected me."

They could say it but they don't. They come back and try again.

Mines Nominee Once Rejected

WASHINGTON — The man President Nixon has appointed to head the embattled Bureau of Mines was rejected for the same job five years ago because of an FBI report that there may have been plagiarism in his doctoral thesis.

The nominee, professor J. Richard Lucas of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was among several candidates considered for the Bureau of Mines hot seat by the Johnson administration in 1965.

This column has learned that Lucas was at the point of being selected when the FBI report came in, containing data based on interviews with professors that Lucas had copied part of the work on his doctoral thesis. His name then was quietly dropped from consideration.

Lucas obtained his doctorate from Columbia University in 1965 with a thesis astutely challenging the notion that atomic energy was about to become the nation's main source of electric power, thus eliminating coal as a major fuel.

White House aide Harry Fleming confirmed that the charge of plagiarism appeared in the earlier FBI report, but he said a more thorough FBI investigation had persuaded the Nixon administration the charge was unfounded.

A gentle, sensitive man, Lucas is understood to have received strong support from segments of the coal industry, including the massive Island Creek Coal Company.

Coal officials have been saying privately that they hoped the rugged, pressure-packed job would go to a "soft-touch," not to a man who might enforce the tough new federal mine health and safety laws too vigorously.

Looking Backward

Ninety-five Years Ago

Quite a number of our business men are putting up those handsome and comfortable striped awnings in front of their places of business ... Farmers inform us that the corn already up has a dyspeptic look. They are not joyful over prospects for a large yield in that grain ... The lawyers had a little spelling bee in the court house yesterday noon, pending arrival of the judge. Mr. Bothwell successfully spelled "shouse."

Forty Years Ago

Miss Ruth Eisenstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Eisenstein, 312 South Sneed avenue, proved an entertaining young hostess to a company of friends at bridge. Those present were: Elizabeth Hanley, Jane McEniry, Virginia Waddell, Mary Virginia Scott, Caroline Courtney, Mary Louise and Elizabeth McLaughlin, Jane Hausam, Virginia Wilkerson, Lucile Meyers and Elsie Blanchard.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Woman's Age: Her Secret?

May a woman lie about her age? The question is not always a frivolous one. On the contrary, serious courtroom battles have been waged over this very issue.

Suppose, for example, that a bridegroom finds out after the wedding that his bride is older

In another kind of age deception, a woman motorist was haled into court for giving three different ages—all in the thirties—on three different registration statements.

Here too, however, the court decided that her misstatements were not momentous enough to make her guilty of an offense. The court pointed out that the main purpose of asking for the woman's age was to make sure she was old enough to drive. In this case, said the court, there was no doubt about that.

Nevertheless, it may be a different story when a woman takes some years off her age in applying for life insurance.

In this situation, there is no question of gallantry, no question of maturity. It is simply a question of arithmetic. An insurance company calculates its risk on the basis of the woman's life expectancy, which in turn depends primarily upon her age.

In most cases, an understated age on an insurance application will mean that the beneficiary of the policy will collect proportionately less insurance.

In fact, if the misstatement is due not to coquettishness but to plain dishonesty, the entire policy might be held null and void. The law may condone vanity, but not cheating.

THE WELL CHILD® Competitive Sports Have Been Drawbacks

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

It is time again to look at Little League baseball from the health standpoint. Dr. N. J. Giannestras, a Cincinnati orthopedist, believes that organized baseball and football programs for children under 12 should be abolished and that such programs for those between 12 and 14 should be closely supervised because of the great risk of serious injury.

Competitive sports for young boys have spread across the nation but, far from preparing the players for a life of professional sport or even for greater physical fitness, all too often they result in permanent damage to a joint.

The greatest danger is to the elbow joints of pitchers, nearly all of whom wind up with a traumatic arthritis or loose fragments of cartilage in the joint space. In young football players similar damage occurs in the knees.

Since there is little likelihood of abolishing organized sports for the 8 to 14 age group, Dr. Giannestras recommends that no boy be allowed to pitch more than three innings in one day three times a week and that young pitchers be encouraged to develop speed and accuracy and not attempt to throw curves. Overemphasis on winning at all costs is the underlying cause of most injuries.

Q—For the last few months every time I have to say "No" to my oldest daughter, 9, she starts to cry. This upsets me very much. What do you advise?

A—Try to find out what is behind this change in your daughter's behavior. Assure her in every way of your love for her and your regard for her as a valued member of the family. When you must cross her, do so gently but firmly and explain your reasons for denying her wishes. That is the only way she will ever gain emotional maturity.

Q—I'm 12 years old. I've just read a list of cancer symptoms and I'm scared. No one in my family ever had cancer but I have what feels like a lump in both breasts. They have been there for four years. Could this be cancer?

A—When feeling your breasts for tumors, you should use the flat of your hand, not your finger tips. If the lumps can be felt in this way, your doctor should examine you. Any tumor, however, that has been present for four years is probably a cyst, not a cancer.

Cambodia Gamble Tests Nixon Nerve

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Talk to men at the White House and it becomes painfully clear President Nixon is going through a siege of self-doubts.

He went into Cambodia with confidence (after considerable nervous soul-searching) believing that he would be in — and out — before a hue and cry in the Senate and on the streets would mount to unmanageable levels.

He was so certain of himself, in fact, that he made little attempt to prepare public opinion and only a limited try at winning domestic allies in advance.

Experience seemed to indicate the two months Nixon had in mind for his Cambodian experiment was too short a time to organize serious resistance. The death of four students at Kent changed that.

Now men in the White House with whom this reporter has been in touch have begun to see what they interpret as a resurgence of Nixon's original nervousness over taking a strong stand.

A faltering by the President now could lead to rather unhappy results.

When the Cambodian operation was being considered, the most military planners hoped to achieve was the destruction of about 25 per cent of the weapons, ammunition, equipment and rice the Communist forces had built up in five major base areas.

This was enough, they believed, to slow the enemy for the crucial six months they had in mind.

Officials this reporter talked to did not believe the raids would cause Hanoi to talk in Paris.

Talk of destroying the Communist (COSVN) headquarters was aimed at giving the public something more tangible than food and ammunition as a target worth a gamble of these proportions. Critics, it was felt, being ignorant in the logic of guerrilla war, would underestimate and ridicule the risking of so many lives to destroy food, arms and equipment.

But destroying a quarter of the scattered supply caches in the five major Communist base areas in Cambodia requires a great many troops right up to the June 30 deadline.

Few people realize the large numbers of men and time required to find the Communist storage and support depots and bunker systems, so well are they camouflaged, so thick is the jungle and so large the area involved.

Disposal of what is found is equally difficult. Thousands of tons of rice cannot easily be carted away. It cannot be quickly destroyed. The same holds true for tons of arms, ammunition and equipment.

The problem is one of numbers of men and time. Because of the rains there is not much time.

With the growth of public clamor, Nixon is already withdrawing troops badly needed to aid the units searching and destroying these hidden stores.

The quicker-than-planned withdrawal of these forces will mean fewer arms, less equipment and rice will be found and destroyed.

The Communists thus will have the means to kill more Americans and South Vietnamese in the months ahead.

There is also another matter at issue. The Cambodian raids and the four air attacks on the north were meant to assure Hanoi public pressure at home would not dissuade Nixon from doing what he believed he must do to bring the war to an end in a way that would preserve the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own fate.

It was intended to convince the men in Hanoi they could not win this war as they did the war against France through a surrender on the home front.

If the public clamor is so great that Nixon seems to back down, how then is Hanoi to interpret this.

Nixon's temporary boldness will have come to naught.

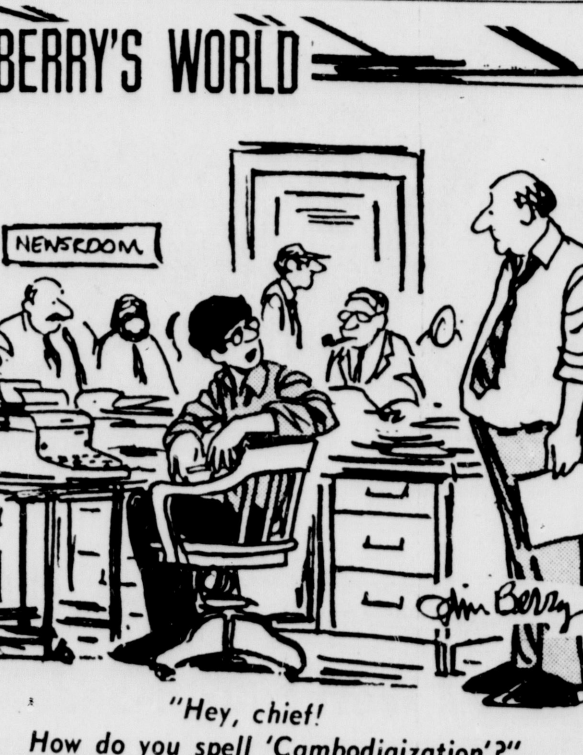

Letter to the Editor

Mrs. Carl F. Appell (223 East 6th St.) — Our hearts were deeply moved as we viewed on our TV, the young eighteen year old "flag bearer" in Cambodia, who held aloft his country's flag to cheer and encourage his comrades, until he himself fell. We pay tribute and honor him.

This, together with an incident which happened in our home this past week, focused our attention more keenly on all our flag represents. The incident — someone decided to "take" one of our most treasured possessions — our American Flag, from our front porch. Shockingly amazed, we asked ourselves, what could prompt such an action? Was it for just another "kick", or a misguided sense of freedom? What a travesty on human freedom! True, our flag symbolizes freedom but not the kind that reaches out and "takes" what it wants, rather than giving in exchange for that freedom some constructive thinking and living.

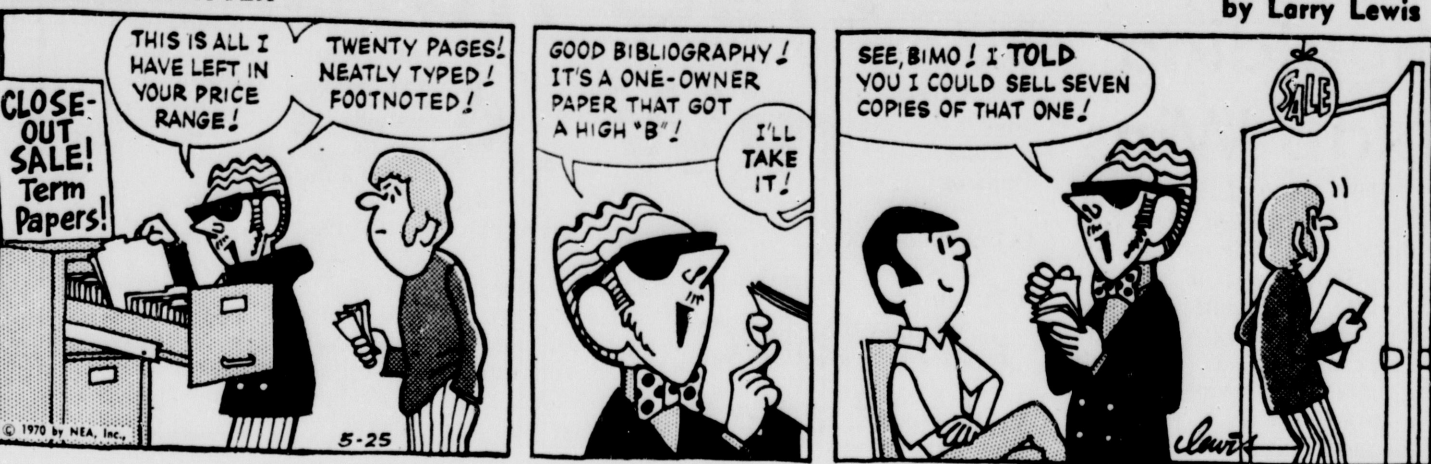

We, like millions of others love our flag and all it represents — our immediate family have been one of the "fortunate" ones, for the three members of my family, a husband, and two sons served their country, in three different wars — the younger son, serving as a Marine, in Korea — fortunate indeed, for they came home.

Our material flag may be gone, but it can be replaced, but all it represents in our lives can never be lost or taken from us. For this we are humbly grateful!

Skier's Belt Bag Is Handy Gadget

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering D. M., the skier, who wanted to know how to carry eyeglasses while skiing. The safest way would be in a HARD case which snaps shut. Put this case in a jacket pocket which zips or in a belt bag such as ski patrolmen wear. I wear one of these belt bags and find it very handy for holding such things as ski wax, nail clippers, suntan oil, small bandages and a stick to keep my lips from chapping.—LILA

DEAR POLLY—D. M., who must wear glasses to enjoy the scenery when riding the chair lift but who does not wear them when skiing, is courting disaster. If glasses are required to see the scenery, they are certainly needed to see moguls, icy patches, rocks and other small obstacles that might be in the way of a skier. When I wore glasses, I wore suitable goggles over them in case of an accident. Now I usually wear goggles. There are defogging solutions on the market for glasses if that presents a problem.—MARILYN

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I accidentally placed my new, white, patent-leather purse on a red candle which left marks on it. Is there any way I can remove these? I tried cleaning fluid but it did not work.—MARGIE

DEAR POLLY—Disposable aluminum broiling pans are a great convenience but most are so light they buckle under weight of the food. The risk of accidental spilling can be lessened by using two pans at once, one fitted inside the other. Only the top one gets dirty, so it is not expensive to do this, as the bottom one can be reused even if the top pan is beyond a good cleaning.—MARY W.

DEAR POLLY—My suggestion is for those girls who are puzzled about what to do with the hot iron when the ironing is finished and they want to be sure the children or pets do not get to it before it is cool enough to put away. Place it on a cookie sheet in the cold oven.—JOHN

Royals' Tally

Milwaukee catcher Jerry McNertty waits for the ball as Kansas City's Luis Alcaraz slides toward the plate in the sixth inning of their game in Kansas City Sunday.

Alcaraz kept the throw and scored the Royals' fourth run. It took extra innings, but the Royals topped the Brewers, 6-5, to sweep the three-game series. (UPI)

Royals Jump to Fourth; Phillies Edge Cards, 6-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Royals won and the St. Louis Cardinals lost, both by the score of 6-5 in the 10th inning, in Sunday's baseball games. The Royals at Kansas City and the Cards at Philadelphia.

And the coincidences didn't end there.

Bob Taylor's two-run pinch single with the bases loaded in the 10th gave the Royals the edge over the Milwaukee Brewers.

A bases-loaded single in the 10th by another Taylor, Tony, capped a Phils comeback over the Cards.

Philadelphia tied the game at five-all on a two-run homer by Larry Hise with two out in the ninth, setting the stage for the clincher off St. Louis reliever Chuck Taylor in the 10th.

The Cards went into the ninth with a 5-3 lead on two bases-loaded walks in a four-run fourth inning. Cookie Rojas, Joe Torre and Carl Taylor singled across one run in the fourth and a walk to Julian Javier sent Phils' starter Chris Short to the showers.

Reliever Bill Wilson then walked Phil Gagliano and Dal Maxvill, forcing in two more runs, and the fourth scored on a ground out.

The Brewers took a 5-4 lead over the Royals when Joe Keough lost Tommy Harper's fly ball in the sun in Milwaukee's half of the 10th, and it went for a triple. Ted Bubiak then singled Harper home, snapping a 4-4 tie.

Keough, with one out in the bottom of the 10th, beat out an infield hit. Two walks filled the bases and Taylor singled off reliever John O'Donoghue's first pitch.

The Chicago White Sox were at Kansas City tonight, with Jerry Crider, 1-0, pitching for the Sox and Dave Morehead, 1-1, for the Royals.

St. Louis is idle today, and opens a three-game set with the Mets at New York starting Tuesday night.

Seven-Point K.U. Margin Over Nebraska

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas won its second straight Big Eight all-sports championship with a healthy seven-point margin over runnerup Nebraska.

Final all-sports standings at the close of the baseball season Saturday showed Kansas with 34 points and four championships and Nebraska 41 points and the share of one title — in football.

The Jayhawks, who won four of the 11 championships, took second in baseball to Nebraska's third place to pad its final margin.

Oklahoma, which won only in tennis, and Kansas State which won in basketball, tied for third with 44½ points each.

Missouri, which shared the football crown with Nebraska, came in fifth with 51 points. Trailing were Oklahoma State with 57½, Iowa State 58 and Colorado 65½.

Frasher, Spalding Nab Wins

JEFFERSON CITY — Another feature win for Tom Frasher in the late model stock car division and a rash of technical questions in the officials' ruling of the supermodified feature highlighted the racing action at Jefferson City's Capital Speedway, Saturday night.

Tom Frasher, who had some stiffer competition for a change from Gary Martin and Hal Conn, still managed to sweep in the fast time, trophy dash and feature of the speedway's late model division.

However, a lost tire, that was later replaced in the fourth turn during the feature for the supermodifieds, forced all but one of the drivers to pull to a stop on the front straight-a-way.

Roy Cary of Boonville, who pilots a red number 44 sprinter, lost a tire on the second lap of the feature in the fourth turn.

A wrecker was summoned to pull the car back to the pit area, but instead his crew replaced the tire.

The drivers kept circling the track under the flag stand and summoned the drivers to come to a stop in front of the grandstand.

Finally flagman Al Hall came down from the flag stand and summoned the drivers to come to a stop in front of the grandstand.

This happened only moments after Roy Hibbard of Marshall had already pulled his car to a stop on the front apron and hailed his crew to come out and change his right rear tire, which was losing air.

According to the rules, no work can be done on any cars under the yellow flag.

Work, however, can be performed on cars on the red flag, but only on the front straight-a-way or the front apron.

Since Cary's and Hibbard's crews worked on their cars on the yellow flag, they were motioned from the track by Hall.

About 15 minutes later the race finally got underway once again.

When all the action was finished, Wb Spalding of Granite City, Ill., took the checkered flag for the victory.

Following Spalding across the finish line were Flea Atkin, Tom Corbin and Bill Uly.

Heat race winners in the supermodified division included Bob Thoman, Spalding and Roy Hibbard.

J. J. Lyle of Warrensburg was the trophy dash winner in the four-car match-up of the supers.

Fast time was set by Ed Gray at 21.13.

Steering malfunctions forced him from the track in the trophy dash and the feature.

Results — Ed Gray, 21.13. Fast time (stocks) — Tom Frasher, 24.09.

Trophy dash (supers) — J. J. Lyle, Wb Spalding, Roy Hibbard; (no time).

Trophy dash (stocks) — Frasher, Hal Conn, Leonard Dale, Gary Martin; (2:06.22).

Heat 1 — Bob Thoman, Elra Sapp, Glen Arnold, J. Dodd; (no time).

Heat 2 — Spalding, Tom Corbin, Lyle, Bill Uly; (3:12.97).

Heat 3 — Hibbard, Flea Atkin, Don Cooper, Roy Cary; (2:55.65).

Stock feature — Frasher, Martin, Conn, Dave Sapp, Terry Turpin; (no time).

Consolation — Cliff Powell, Martin Goddy, Dave Dwyer, Sapp, Arnold; (5:48.17).

Super feature — Spalding, Atkin, Corbin, Uly, Cooper, Lyle; (no time).

Two Advance In Tennis Tourney

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spain and France, each with impressive victories behind them, have moved into the next round of the European Group A Davis Cup tennis matches.

Spain completed a 5-0 sweep over Bulgaria and France hammered Austria 5-0 with singles victories Sunday. The winners will compete against each other June 12-14.

Elsewhere in Davis Cup competition, West Germany routed the United Arab Republic 5-0 for the right to meet Belgium, which eliminated Finland 4-1 in Group B play.

The last two singles matches of the Romania-Greece encounter in Group A play were postponed until today because of bad weather in Bucharest Sunday.

Seek Academy Players

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — Ewing Kauffman's Baseball Academy has put out a call for all 1970 high school graduates who possess outstanding athletic ability.

Kauffman, owner of the Kansas City Royals and founder of the unique baseball academy which will open Aug. 1 at Sarasota, Fla., revealed detailed plans at a press briefing Monday for a tryout camp June 4-6 at Municipal Stadium.

"We are very optimistic about finding our first candidates for the academy at this tryout camp," Kauffman said. "We already have more than 1,000 recommendations of possible candidates, including more than 100 from Kansas and Missouri, but we don't want to miss a single young man who has the potential and the interest."

The baseball academy primarily is seeking young men with athletic ability who have had very little previous exposure to baseball. Fifty such

Marvin Miller Gives OK For 3-Year Package

NEW YORK (AP) — A new three-year agreement between owners and players has the green light from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Last week, negotiating committees for both sides reached a "basic agreement subject to ratification by the players and owners," Miller said Sunday.

He said he would recommend ratification by the players and voting would be completed within a week.

"I cannot say anything more at this point," he added. But at least one player representative was happy about the tentative agreement. Dal Maxvill of St. Louis said Sunday he was satisfied and thought it would be approved by the players.

Maxvill said under the agreement a player cut during spring training would get 30 days pay and one whose employment terminated during the season would get 60 days pay and that the players would receive 60 per cent, instead of 50, from the proceeds of the first three playoff games other than the World Series.

John Gaherin, the owners' representative, was unavailable for comment.

The players voted 505-89 several weeks ago to reject a new pact. Miller had not recommended ratification of that agreement.

Tournament Winner

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gustavo Palatof of Little Rock, Ark., defeated Frankie Parker of Chicago 6-2, 9-7 Sunday in a battle between ex-Davis Cuppers for the men's 45 division title in the Southern Seniors Tennis Tournament.

"Then consider a 17-year-old boy who has played virtually no baseball but has such athletes will enter the academy each year for 10 months of extensive baseball work. They will receive regular college training in other areas at the same time. Those who show they have professional baseball ability at the end of the 10-month period will enter the Royals farm system.

Syd Thrift, formerly the Royals' Eastern Scouting Director who now is director of the academy, will conduct the tryout camp.

Anyone between the ages of 16 and 21 and whose high school class has graduated, is eligible for a tryout at the Kansas City camp. American Legion players must have written permission with them from their coach or post commander. No pre-registration is necessary by anyone.

"This camp will vary from others held in the past because of our requirements for Academy candidates," Thrift said. "For example, to be considered a young man must be able to run the 60-yard dash in 6.9 seconds or better."

Thrift said tests also will be administered to judge basic throwing, agility and hitting potential.

"Everyone who scores well enough in these other areas will be given the same psycho motor tests that we had the Royals' major and minor league players take," the director added.

Thrift said each day's session would begin promptly at 10 a.m. and he urged everyone to attend the first day because of the length of the total testing for successful candidates.

Players with previous baseball experience are asked to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes, while the non-baseball players should wear gym equipment or similar attire which will make movement easier.

"Our program for the baseball academy differs in several key respects from anything that has been attempted before in professional baseball," Kauffman said, in remarks prepared for delivery at the press briefing.

"We came up with the entire concept as a result of asking certain critical questions for which baseball could not provide adequate answers."

"For example, we questioned whether the traditional system of player acquisition was sufficient to meet the needs of baseball in its current period of growth. Baseball had not expanded its major leagues for about 60 years until 1961. Then in just nine years expansion added 50 per cent more clubs."

"We also questioned whether baseball was drawing raw talent from all available sources — especially from the ranks of those who had not had a chance to play the game."

"Consider the intermittent coaching or instruction that a youngster receives playing sandlot or little league baseball or perhaps even participating in an American Legion or high school program."

"Then consider a 17-year-old boy who has played virtually no baseball but has such outstanding athletic traits as speed, coordination and eyesight.

"With a properly designed program such as ours, would it not be possible for this 17-year-old to catch up to and even surpass his contemporaries who have played baseball?"

"And, if he is given academic training as well as baseball training, wouldn't this increase his potential to become a true major leaguer both on and off the playing field?"

Kauffman said construction of the baseball academy and the Royals' minor league complex, both on a 121-acre plot in Sarasota, is slightly ahead of schedule.

Thrift's staff for the tryout camp will include Jay Hankins, the Royals' top scout in Missouri, Iowa and Oklahoma; and academy staff members Steve Korcheck, coordinator of instruction; and Dr. Ray Reilly, research psychologist.

Fred Whisler Grabs Feature At I-70 Track

ODESSA — Fred Whisler closed the gap between first and second place in the stock car division's point standings at I-70 Speedway Saturday night.

Whisler from Liberty, Mo., who is currently in second place at that track behind Dave Wall, won the last time event, a heat race and the feature.

Wall added some points to his first-place standing by coping a heat race and the trophy dash.

Gordie Blankenship of Keokuk, Iowa was the other heat race winner.

There was no racing at I-70 in the super-sprint division Sunday, since track manager John Hughes closed the facility early last week in that division.

Ruby Confident In Indy Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Well, here we are for the 11th time at the old Brickyard. In spite of some things that shouldn't happen to anyone, we're in the 500 field—starting 25th in a field of 33 cars.

But if my luck gets as good as it's been bad, I'm sure nobody'll be able to race with me race day.

To start with, we ran 167 miles an hour the first time we went on the race track, May 4. But from then until last Saturday, everything seemed to go backwards instead of forwards.

I blew an engine on Mother's Day. I mean it scattered everywhere. Gene White, my car owner, called his wife and told her old Rube had just blown her Mother's Day present.

We kept having engine problems for the next week. Dave Laycock, my chief mechanic, and the whole crew went four days and nights without any sleep. By the first day of qualifying, we figured they had found the problem.

I went out that Saturday and put together three practice laps at better than 171 miles an hour. We felt real good about our chances for the pole position.

Of course, our luck in the draw for a qualifying position had to be typical of the whole week—we drew the very last

Tom Aaron Gets First P.G.A. Win

ATLANTA (AP) — Tommy Aaron refused to gamble on the 18th green Sunday but, after some 30 minutes as a nervous spectator, still cashed in the big chips in the $125,000 Atlanta Golf Classic and broke a 10-year victory drought on the PGA tour.

"I wanted to shoot at the green but I was too far out... about 245 yards I guess," said Aaron, a drawing Georgian who earlier had spotted the field two strokes with a self-imposed penalty on No. 14.

"So I elected to lay up," he added with a smile, "and now I'm glad I did."

Aaron concluded his final round with a 69 and a 72-hole score of 275, 13-under-par over the 7,052-yard Atlanta Country Club course. He then watched as his challengers wilted on the up anywhere," said Aaron.

"That was the lowest four rounds I ever shot as a pro," said Aaron. "It's a great thrill

Southern Champ

PINEHURST, S.C. (AP) — Kathy Hite of Florence, S.C., is the new Southern Women's Golf champion after a see-saw battle with Mrs. John Griffith of Fort Worth, Tex.

The lead changed hands several times in the scheduled 36-hole finals Saturday over the 5,926-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club, but regulation play ended tied.

In a playoff, Miss Hite knocked in a seven-foot birdie putt on the 39th hole to win the tournament.

Miss Hite was 1-up at the end of 18 holes. Mrs. Griffith went 1-up at the 15th, but the champion came back to tie it on the 18th green with an 18-inch putt.

First American Tourney Win

Tommy Aaron gives out a tongue in cheek grin as he narrowly missed a birdie putt on the 17th green in the final round of the Atlanta Classic, Sunday. Aaron went on to win the $125,000 tourney, his first ever in PGA play. (UPI)

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

14-Putting Speed

The speed of a putt is more important than its break and direction, at least as you size it up. You instinctively will judge break and direction, even if you're not an expert player, and the danger is probably that you will over-calculate those factors and underestimate the importance of the speed.

You have to intuit the speed of a putt. That sounds a bit too mystical for an old whatever-works-is-the-best guy like me, but what I mean is that you strive to fix in your mind an image of how fast the ball must roll to go into the cup. If you read the direction and break of the putt correctly, the problem becomes speed. The ball must get to the cup—but not too fast, or it will roll over the top or bounce off. I will never stroke a putt until I am sure how fast I want it to be going.

That will depend to a certain extent, of course, on the terrain. If it's downhill, the ball will gain momentum. If it's uphill, it will travel faster during the early stages of its journey, particularly on long putts. But the idea is

Top Driver to Perform Here

Ed Leavitt of Kearney, Mo., is among the more than 70 drivers who have entered the Sedalia Jaycees Memorial Day Weekend Races, scheduled for Sunday at the Missouri State Fairgrounds. Leavitt, currently in fifth place in the International Motor Contest Association, pilots this sprinter owned by Keith Baker. He scored an early win in February by winning one of the IMCA's Winter National features at Tampa, Fla.

Late Pit Stop Ends Hopes for Pearson

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson slumped his defeated body across the nearest table. The stock car king was beaten physically by Sunday's boiling heat and mentally by personal misfortune.

"God, I thought I had it won," he murmured. "Had it in my hands."

An expressway driver can fork out $200 for a busted clutch at his neighborhood garage. The same problem had just cost Pearson a cool $36,950.

Pearson led by two miles when he wheeled his Ford Torino into the pits for a final World 600 stop. A routine service job and he was home free in a two-car fight with Ford teammate Donnie Allison.

On went the tires, in went the gas and Pearson got set to sail back to the 1 1/2-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway with 55 miles to go. Nothing. Crew members pushed, but nothing. A broken clutch killed the Spartanburg, S.C., driver's hopes and he limped frustrated toward the garage.

Allison, meanwhile, had been relieved by LeeRoy Yarbrough after his Ford floorboard overheated. Yarbrough's own Mercury had fizzled because of a bad clutch, but he sailed to a $39,600 triumph in the Allison machine.

Pearson was presented a slim $2,650 payday, a mere pauper's wage next to the fat check Allison stuffed in his racing suit.

Cale Yarbrough's Mercury suffered a long pit stop early in the 400-lap grind with spark plug problems, but the stock South Carolinian plugged away and picked up second money of $17,380.

Benny Parsons of Detroit was a surprise third-place finisher in another Ford and earned $11,595. Tiny Lund wheeled the highest finisher among the favored Dodge Daytonas, taking fourth place and a payoff of $7,565.

Former stock car golden boy Fred Lorenzen was en route to a triumphant return to the sport after a three-year retirement, but a blown engine in his Dodge killed his chances after 380 miles.

Lorenzen, 35, has won four races at Charlotte including a pair of World 600s. His car was sponsored by the speedway itself and helped lure 70,000 fans to the sport's longest race.

Allison is part of a Hueytown, Ala., brother team. His brother, Bobby, went out early with a blown engine in his Dodge.

Donnie had finished second to Buddy Baker and LeeRoy in his last two shots at the 600-miler. He also was a winner here in the National 500 last October.

Yarbrough was dressed in civilian clothes and headed to a helicopter when Allison's call came for a relief driver. LeeRoy was en route to the airport to fly his own plane to Indianapolis. Both he and Allison will drive in the Memorial Day 500 next Saturday.

"I ducked into a bathroom and changed back into my driving suit," said Yarbrough, who had not seen victory lane this season. "When I got behind the wheel of Donnie's Ford I knew it was a hotseat."

Allison's floorboard sizzled

when insulation burned away, leaving only a thin sheet of metal between the driver and red-hot exhaust pipes.

"I was cooked," said Allison. "I had to get out of the car and I'm thankful LeeRoy, who is so familiar with Ford products, was available to drive for me."

Allison's car averaged 129.680 miles an hour. The speed was held down by 10 caution flags covering 99 laps.

Pole sitter Bobby Isaac had early radiator problems in his Dodge Daytona and settled for seventh place.

Elsewhere on the auto racing scene Sunday, Carl Harrison of Tiffin, Ohio, won the 22nd Little 500 sprint car race at the Sun Valley Speedway at Anderson, Ind.

Dick Trickle made his first U.S. Auto Club start of the season a good one, winning the $7,500 stock car feature at New Bremen, Ohio. Trickle, of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., pushed his 1969 Torino the 50 miles around the half-mile asphalt track in 34.4334.

Ron Grable of Cupertino, Calif., led from the start to finish and lapped all but a few of the 14 other drivers who finished to win the second race of the Continental Formula A series in a Lolo T190 at Edmonton, Alta.

In Zolder, Belgium, Austrian Jochen Rindt, driving a Lotus Ford, won the Formula 2 Grand Prix of Limbourg auto race.

Holland's Toine Hezemans drove his Alfa Romeo GTA to victory in the European Championship of Touring Cars race at the Czechoslovak Grand Prix Circuit in Brno, Czechoslovakia.

Jean-Pierre Jaussaud of France won the Paris Grand Prix for Formula 3 cars on the Monthery, France, circuit.

"We still didn't run as well as we can, but Mack opened up and it made the rest of the guys hustle to try and catch up. We did play better defense and made the Pacers work hard for their shots."

"We had some breaks go our way for a change," Sharman added.

"I was cooked," said Allison. "I had to get out of the car and I'm thankful LeeRoy, who is so familiar with Ford products, was available to drive for me."

Stars Seek Upset

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Stars, running out of time—and apparently running out of Los Angeles as well—are counting on their running game against the Indiana Pacers in tonight's sixth game of the American Basketball Association championships.

The Pacers need one more victory to clinch their first ABA crown. A year ago they lost to Oakland's Oaks in the finals.

Everything the Stars do is a "first" for them. They've never made the playoffs, much less the finals. But now, facing elimination, they must win tonight to send the series back to Indianapolis for a seventh and deciding game Tuesday night.

Tonight's game, however, appears to be a "last" for the Cinderella club—their last game in Los Angeles. General Manager Jim Handry says new owner Mel Daniels has decided to move the club either to nearly Anaheim or Salt Lake City next season.

If they win the championship, then move, it will keep alive what seems to have become an ABA tradition.

The Pittsburgh Pipers won the first ABA title two years ago, then moved to Minnesota. Last year the Oaks captured the crown, then became the Washington Caps.

The Stars depended heavily on their running game—triggered by little speedster Mack Calvin—to get them into post-season play and past Dallas and Denver in the Western Division playoffs.

But they tried to outthink rather than outrun the Pacers, runaway winners in the East. Suddenly they found themselves down three games to one.

"We knew that Indiana would be laying for Mack," Coach Bill Sharman said. "We also knew that, in quick, strong Bill Keller, they had a guard who could put the pressure on Mack all over the court."

"So we decided to have either Bobby Warren or the other guard bring the ball up because we knew they would not be pressured as much," Sharman explained. "Maybe I tried to use too much strategy."

On Saturday they reverted to their running game and won the nationally televised contest 117-113 in overtime. Calvin scored 33 points and the Stars got 23 more from center Craig Raymond and 22 from forward George Stone.

The game was more like the way we played where we were winning," Sharman said. "Everybody took turns leading a spurt."

"We still didn't run as well as we can, but Mack opened up and it made the rest of the guys hustle to try and catch up. We did play better defense and made the Pacers work hard for their shots."

"We had some breaks go our way for a change," Sharman added.

Pay TV Measure Is Hit By Minority

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first bid for a pay television system was filed with the Federal Communications Commission in 1952 but 18 years later the fight still rages.

It's headed for the House floor now but there is no fixed date for the confrontation assured by a slashing minority report on a bill approved by the House Commerce Committee.

This is mischievous legislation dictated by powerful interest groups—the broadcasters and theater owners—the nine minority panel members claim. They said as now written the bill "would kill this new industry aborning."

However, the committee's majority argued the proposed regulations "are the most effective means for ensuring that the programming now offered on conventional television will remain available to the viewing public without charge."

The FCC approved a pay-TV plan in December 1968. It was upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court declined to review it.

But the House committee, which has been calling for delays in putting the system into effect, came up with a series of more stringent regulations that could throw up a big roadblock.

Included in the proposal are a complete ban on commercial advertising, a sharp reduction in the amount of feature films and sports—considered the backbone of pay TV—that could be shown, and a stretch-out on the time ban for showing certain sports programs.

The new package was drafted by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., a long-time congressional opponent of pay television.

Dingell originally had introduced a bill that would have prohibited the FCC from authorizing anyone to engage in pay TV broadcasting. A Commerce subcommittee rejected it and approved a resolution suggesting the FCC modify its rules on sports programs.

When that subcommittee proposal came before the full committee, however, it was rejected in turn. Dingell's new package then was rammed through, opponents claim, without any actual hearings and in the absence of subcommittee Chairman Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass.

Here are some major changes proposed by the committee:

—The FCC would allow a pay-TV station to show commercial advertising in its conventional programming. The Dingell proposal would ban it entirely, both in the station's pay and conventional operations.

—The FCC would provide that not more than 90 per cent of the pay-TV operation could be in a combination of feature films and sporting events. Dingell's bill would make it 45 per cent of the over-all operation and not more than 60 per cent in prime time hours, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

—The bill would extend from two to five years the ban against pay on showing sports programs which have been regularly carried live on conventional television in a community.

Learns His Lesson Outside of Class

CHICAGO (AP) — Capt. Sidney Lee, chief of police in Port of Spain, Trinidad, came to Chicago to attend the International Security Conference and learn how to protect against home intrusion, and fell victim to that very crime.

Burglars entered Lee's hotel room Sunday and escaped with all of his credit cards, and a woman's watch and eight silver bracelets—which he had purchased as gifts.

Sen. Symington For Total War On Inflation

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., called Saturday night for use of all White House powers including wage, price and credit controls if necessary to end "rampant inflation."

"Government intervention in the market place is pervasive and is not always bad," Symington said at a Clayton Township recognition dinner. "In fact we have deliberately passed many laws to protect labor from exploitation, to protect industry from price discrimination."

"Somehow, however, we seem to have adopted the theory that the government has to be a passive onlooker to all price and wage decisions even though indirectly through fiscal, monetary and regulatory actions we set the conditions."

Worldwide commitments have not only placed a burden on the American taxpayer, Symington said, but have also caused the White House to neglect pressing economic and social needs at home.

"I do not believe the American people will tolerate much longer the continuation of policies which could soon lead us to economic and financial ruin under the mantle of 'fulfilling our international obligations,'" he said.

A 'Spiritual Reawakening' Urged in Talk

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — The president of St. Louis University told graduating seniors of Southeast Missouri State College Sunday that only through a "spiritual reawakening" can they meet challenges ahead.

"The standard of living we have acquired for ourselves is at the direct expense of other peoples," said the Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., who spoke at the school's baccalaureate program.

"If we continue to be a nation of consumers to the extent that we have, we will be consumed by our own greed. If we become still more calloused to the wants of others, if we lose sight of compassion altogether, we will indeed have lost our soul."

"Being comfortable is not a sin," he added, "but I submit that we have a moral duty to weigh our comforts against the needs of less fortunate people elsewhere."

NATO Ministers Meeting Overshadowed By Wars

ROME (AP) — Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance assembled in Rome today to discuss proposals for a "stand-easy" deal with the Soviet bloc. But the ministers' two-day spring meeting opening Tuesday is shadowed by war dangers in the Middle East and Indochina.

A series of expert studies prepared for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council of Ministers underlines the alliance's interest in an East-West program of balanced, controlled force cuts. The deal NATO's military men are urging calls for a 15 million-man cut in Warsaw Pact forces in Europe in return for a 300,000-man NATO reduction. That would bring the Communist force down to about 3 million and NATO's European force to about 2.7 million.

The Russians have not responded to earlier overtures for mutual troop cuts, and few if any allied authorities expect an affirmative response from Moscow now. One reason for this view is the deepening Soviet involvement in the Middle East and Mediterranean theaters, on NATO's southern doorstep.

Thus the Soviet posture of hostility toward Israel and backing for the Arabs is being examined in its intercontinental context. It is suspected that the presence of an increasing number of Russian pilots and other military specialists in the Arab world carries with it a considerable spinoff element favoring the Soviet Union's global strategic interests as well as the immediate purpose of strengthening the Arabs.

"The greatly increased Soviet presence in the Mediterranean causes considerable concern," said U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers when he arrived Sunday night. "We are reminded that NATO will have a vital role in the maintenance of security in this decade."

Rogers is scheduled to give the council an account of the circumstances that led the United States to extend its Vietnam war into Cambodia and of the situation there now.

America's allies in Europe were generally frosty in their reactions to President Nixon's thrust into Cambodia.

For one thing, they didn't care for a member of the alliance crossing an international frontier—as the Russians have done—and they made their view known.

Several of them resented the lack of advance consultation and information about an operation which they believe could ultimately affect NATO's and their own vital interests. For years NATO statesmen, represented both big powers and small, have been hammering the theme that ever closer political consultation on global matters and ever closer crisis management are essential. Several foreign ministers reportedly plan to toss some pointed questions at Rogers.

Still another passion-packed issue faces Rogers—the question of whether the United States should resume supply of arms to the Greek military dictatorship.

Under Scandinavian pressure, the Greek regime already has quit the Council of Europe. Now some Scandinavian political parties are campaigning for Greece's suspension from NATO until it returns to democracy.

The United States, with the support of Britain, has been insisting that Greece has a role to play in NATO. If this is accepted by the alliance, the Americans and British argue, it follows that Greece must be given the arms with which to carry out that role.

Weathermen Plan Attack, Says Report

NEW YORK (AP) — A statement warning of an "attack on a symbol or institution of American justice" within the next two weeks has purportedly been issued by the Weathermen, the revolutionary youth organization, the New York Times reported today.

The statement also claimed to have identified the third person killed in an explosion in a Greenwich Village townhouse last March as Terry Robbins, a Weatherman who was a radical leader at Kent State University in 1968, the newspaper said.

The Times said the statement was received at its Chicago bureau over the weekend. Radical sources were quoted as saying the document was authentic.

The Weathermen are a faction of the militant Students for a Democratic Society.

The three-page statement was reported by the Times as being a transcript of a tape recording by Bernardine Dohrn, a Weatherman leader who is in hiding, the Times said.
